Russians Hold Freight Three Hours
Claiming Swastika Was on Car

Berlin —(AP)— Soviet forces in East Germany blocked an American army train today because of a drawing — the Russians called it a swastika — in the dust on one of the cars, U. S. authorities reported. The train was headed across East Germany for West Berlin.

According to a U. S. spokesman, the Soviets alleged that a swastika was drawn on one of the cars. The Americans saw no swastika, they said, until the train had been in Soviet custody for nearly three hours.

A later train was passed through by the Soviets without incident. It arrived in West Berlin about an hour late.

An informed source in Frankfurt said "maybe kids" were drawing the swastikas.

The train was one which U. S. Army sends daily from Bremerhaven, on the North sea. It had just entered the 110 mile stretch of communist territory that separates West Germany from West Berlin.

The dust on one refrigerator car had markings on it. They looked to the Americans like a child's funny-face drawing — a square head with a long nose. Soviet troops said it was a swastika and shoved the train on a siding, under Soviet guard.

It was 5:30 a.m. — nearly three hours later — before a Soviet colonel appeared at the request of the U. S. train commander. They inspected the train together. This time there was a one-foot swastika drawn in the dust.

Since the outbreak of anti-Jewish incidents in Germany early this year, the communists have complained several times that trains with Nazi markings have crossed the zonal border.

Nixon Expects
Up to 40 Pct. of Primary Vote

Madison —(AP)— Wisconsin's Republican leaders don't expect Vice President Richard M. Nixon, their candidate in the April 5 presidential primary, to poll more than 30 to 40 per cent of the total vote.

The estimate came today from GOP State Chairman Claude Jasper of Madison and was based on reports gathered earlier in the week from the party's county leaders.

There was no note of discouragement accompanying Jasper's prediction.

"When Mr. Nixon came into the state he had a full realization of the odds and knew the best he could hope for was 30 to 40 per cent of the vote," Jasper said.

"To get more would be unheard of with all the glamour and romance on the other side."

Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota have been locked for weeks in an all-out campaign on the Democratic side of the ballot.

Rhee Turns 85

Seoul, Korea —(AP)— President Syngman Rhee, oldest active chief of state in the world, observed his 85th birthday today with a simple cake-cutting ceremony at his presidential palace.

Police and the military were present by the score but they had little to do.

Only Four Flags

Only four Soviet flags fluttered at the airport. On the 10-mile drive into town the only people on hand were police and military guards posted to control a crowd which never showed up.

Nails that police said were strewn on the route to the airport to keep organized communist groups from being present at the arrival were needless. No such convoys showed up and the only people who suffered were busy truck drivers.

In town a crowd police estimated at 10,000 waited in the big city square. They were reserved and sent up a mild cheer when Khrushchev arrived.

Beamed Broadly

The stocky communist party chief took it in stride. He beamed broadly on his arrival at the airport and he was still grinning when he hit town.

Only one big banner appeared on the way into Bordeaux. It hung from a bridge and said: "Long live De Gaulle, champion of liberty and peace."

In Bordeaux's mammoth main square a crowd police estimated at 10,000 turned out for the Soviet chief's arrival for a visit to the famed Bordeaux state theater building.

Small Crowds Silent

Some chanted "Khrushchev! Khrushchev!" as the smiling Soviet premier appeared and waved his hat. Others chanted "liberty! liberty!" but they didn't broaden the theme.

Despite the cool reception, Khrushchev appeared cheerful and prepared for a full day.

Police said the boy was arrested at a downtown hotel in the pre-dawn hours.

Circuit Solicitor Charles Wright identified the boy as Jerry Earl Hunt, a high school student in the neighboring town of Attalla, Ala.

Wright said the boy, a slim blond with a crew cut, was held on charges of assault with intent to murder.

Neither shooting victim was in critical condition.

"He shows no remorse," said Wright. "In fact, he seems fairly proud of the act."

Planned Assault

Wright said the boy told officers he planned the assault on the Beth Israel Reform congregation synagogue for two weeks following a grudge that grew out of a chess game.

Earlier this week Hunt told high school friends of his plot, Wright said, but nobody took him seriously.

Wright said Hunt told officers he was alone, but police said they considered the case still open with the possibility more were involved.

Another youth was picked up earlier, questioned and released.

Witnesses to the shootings said they believed more than one person was in the fleeing car.

The search centered on Hunt shortly after police found a car belonging to his stepfather abandoned about 10 blocks from the synagogue. The car contained a .22-caliber rifle.

Kidnap Threat

Los Angeles —(AP)— Police say a pie truck rolled backward downhill, stopped at a police station and disgorged an unusual kind of cargo: two would-be kidnapers and robbers.

Bakery owner Al Ginsberg told this story:

Two brothers, former employees at his bakery, trapped him in his truck and ordered him to drive to a bank and withdraw $22,000. As he neared a police station, on a slight rise, Ginsberg jumped out and ran for help as the driverless truck rolled toward the station. The brothers were still in the truck when police ran out in answer to his cries.

Columbus Starks, 20, and his brother, Charles, 16, were booked for investigation of kidnapping and robbery.

Swollen River Threatens New Brazilian Dam

Pressure Eased to Cut Danger While
Floods Continue

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil —(AP)— Reports from Oros in north-east Brazil today gave hope the big $5 - million earthen dam there may be saved from bursting under pressure of flood waters.

Word came that workers had opened spillways on both sides of the 130-foot-high dam, permitting water of the rain-swollen Jaguaribe river to flow around and taking off some pressure. Rains were diminishing and the level of tributaries of the Jaguaribe was falling.

But Jose Candido Pessoa, chief of northeast dam-building projects, also reported that water from the spillways was flooding nearby areas.

Evacuate People

People were evacuated from these danger spots. Police had to order some out because they first refused to leave their homes.

Officials kept an anxious watch on the giant structure while carrying out the evacuation of 50,000 residents from five towns lying in its path.

The still incomplete dam, a major project in combatting northeastern droughts, has been under constant pressure from rain-swollen waters for several days.

Twelve smaller dams already have given away in southern Ceara, forcing thousands to flee. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Clips on Tax Forms
Help T-Men Save Money on Supplies

Baltimore, Md. —(AP)— When you paid your federal income tax this year, chances are you contributed more to your government's operation than the amount of the tax.

Did you fasten the withholding statement to the tax form with a paper clip? Well, Internal Revenue service saved the clip.

Between now and the April 15 filing deadline, the Baltimore IRS office will collect enough paper clips to supply its receiving department for the coming year.

Deaths of 3 Babies

Fall River, Mass. —(AP)— The deaths of three infants in Truesdale hospital was blamed today on the inadvertent use of boric acid solution instead of distilled water.

Dr. Alfred L. Frechette, state health commissioner, said last night the boric acid was used mistakenly in the infants formulae.

Human Error Causes

The attaché asserted in a farewell message left with friends that "in Cuba there exists a dictatorship of communist inspiration, which has resulted in the negation of all liberties."

Police Remove Tension Cause

South Africa Raises
Pass-Carrying Rule
In Major Retreat

Johannesburg, South Africa —(AP)— South Africa's white police announced today they are no longer going to arrest Negroes for not carrying their passbooks.

This official announcement from Pretoria police headquarters amounted to a major retreat by the nationalist government in its fight against the antipass campaign waged this week by the pan-Africanist congress.

The campaign led to bloody riots Monday and Tuesday and a subsequent crippling strikes by Negroes.

The spreading Negro work stoppage in the cape area, where thousands of Africans have left their jobs, was the focal point of South Africa's race troubles this tense week-end.

Attention was also fixed on the town of Meyerton about 10 miles from Monday's riot area of Vereeniging and Sharpsville where nationalists Premier Hendrik Verwoerd plans to address a big political rally today.

There have been rumors the Africans will try to disturb the rally, but Friday's cancellation of all police and army leaves seemed to insure plenty of protection.

Chicago —(AP)— The baby department of Norwegian-American hospital has a study in contrasts these days. Its largest guest is more than seven times as heavy as its smallest.

The heavyweight, 14 pounds, 4 ounces, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ragano. The infant, born yesterday, is the largest in the hospital's history.

The lightweight, 1 pound, 9 ounces, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Cureton. This mite weighed 2 pounds, 1 ounce at birth March 8. Her condition is considered satisfactory.

Seek Starved Rock Clues

Ottawa, Ill. —(AP)— Investigators held out hope today that a new batch of filmshots of scenic beauty in Starved Rock State park—may show something hitherto overlooked in the hunt for clues in the slaying of three prominent Chicago area women.

One roll of film already has stirred speculation concerning the fatal beating of three Chicago matrons in rugged St. Louis canyon on the park grounds. That roll was taken by one of the victims moments before they were attacked March 14.

Today, authorities expected to study movies and snapshots taken by a minister who toured the park on that fatal Monday.

Not in Park

Although the Rev. Aubrey W. Hefflin said he did not enter the canyon in which the women met their deaths, it was felt that some of his pictures might have caught a figure, a face, a scene that will furnish a new lead.

The films were mailed last week from Brookings, S. D., where the touring evangelist motored after leaving Starved Rock. He has since proceeded west on his mission.

Other leads so far have proved inconclusive in the search for the killer or killers of Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47, Mrs. Mildred Lindquist, 50, and Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50.

The victims were socially prominent residents of Riverside, a western suburb of Chicago. Their husbands are Chicago business executives.

One lead currently under study is the description of a man seen talking to the women shortly before they disappeared. A LaSalle, Ill., auto dealer also reported seeing a 1958 model Bel Air Chevrolet near the entrance to St. Louis Canyon.

German Leader Says Arms Build-Up Will Continue if Soviets Reject Ike's Proposal

Tokyo —(AP)— West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today challenged the Soviet Union to either accept the United States "open skies" disarmament inspection plan at the May 16 summit conference or face a continued arms build-up by the west.

The 84-year-old chancellor said that if the Soviets again reject the inspection plan first proposed by President Eisenhower to permit disarmament "we must not let ourselves be deceived into talking about relaxing tension all the time, face the hard facts and see that the free people are as strong as possible."

Adenauer told newsmen he and Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi agreed at a conference that disarmament will be the major business of the summit meeting.

He said his opinion is that another Soviet rejection of the west's disarmament inspection plan would prove that "Soviet Russia cannot be swayed except by direct force."

Adenauer said "mankind is entitled to controlled disarmament and has a right to be free and liberated" from the burden of military costs which could be spent on social betterment. But he also stoutly defended West German's rearmament when asked by a newsmen to justify it.

"Believe me, you can only arrive at disarmament through armament, because if one side is weak the other side will not disarm," he said.

Polaris Missile
Passes Tube
Firing Test

Cape Canaveral, Fla. —(AP)— The first fully-guided Polaris launching from an underground tube has moved this submarine missile nearer the day when it will prowls the seas aboard nuclear submarines.

One of the 28-foot rockets bolted from a subterranean pit yesterday and darted more than 900 miles down the Atlantic missile range. This was the second straight successful tube shot and the ninth success in the last 10 launchings for the Polaris.

A blast of compressed air popped the missile from the 52-foot-deep tube and its first stage engine ignited about 70 feet above ground. The second stage fired a minute later.

This was the first inertially-guided Polaris flight from the tube. Several other Polaris equipped with inertial (built-in) guidance have been launched successfully from a regular land pad.

The next step is to fire a guided Polaris from a ship at sea. This is expected soon. After that come critical underwater launchings from a submarine. These are scheduled this summer from the George Washington, the first of the Polaris nuclear subs.

Capt. James M. Burke said it was the latest departure he has made in 10 years. Last year the J. B. Ford made its first trip March 17.

Kimberly, Kaukauna Districts May be Joined by Village

Combined Locks — A 5-man citizen committee has been appointed by the village school board to investigate joining Kaukauna and Kimberly High school districts by the 1962 deadline set by the state to have all areas in a high school or integrated districts.

The committee consists of Robert Lacey, Donald Hoh, John Opsteen, James Strick and Joseph Lenz, each from a different area of the community.

The Kaukauna and Kimberly school boards have offered to furnish the committee with complete data on their school systems, including assessed valuation of the districts, present and future enrollments, indebtedness and adequacy of school facilities for the future.

Have No Power

The committee will gather and evaluate materials prior to making them public to citizens of the district through a series of public meetings or through mimeographed information sheets.

The committee will work in close touch with the school board, keeping it informed on progress.

Kimberly and Kaukauna probably would accept the village, since it has an industrial tax base.

The committee indicated a village-wide referendum might be necessary before the school board would request annexation to a system.

Apt Comparison

Dismal State of Church in China Likened to Age of Roman Martyrs

BY TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

The dismal state of the tiny Christian community in communist China has often been likened to the plight of the church during the persecutions of Roman Emperor Diocletian.

It's an apt comparison. Since the red armies of Mao Tse Tung overran the Chinese mainland more than 10 years ago, the government has dedicated its best efforts to erasing Christian influence from the face of the land.

Desperate State

The sentencing of Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh, accused of conspiring to overthrow the communist regime, points up Christianity's desperate state. He's

Catholic sources in the United States list three foreign missionaries in addition to Bishop Walsh as remaining on the Chinese mainland. Before the red takeover, there were more than 5,000.

Two of the remaining missionaries are Koreans. They are identified only as Fathers Kim and Yen. They were last heard from more than a year ago. Apparently, they are in jail.

On Red Side

The other is a German priest, the Rev. Peter Hunsberger, who, says a Catholic spokesman, apparently has gone over to the communists. At last reports, he was working as a German translator in Peiping.

Protestant missionaries have fared as poorly. At the end of 1949, says the Missionary Research Library of the Union Theological Seminary, there were about 2,000 American Protestant missionary workers active in China. Today there are none.

Still in China

At least one, the Rev. Paul Mackenson, a Lutheran, is still in China, teaching English in a communist school. He has served a prison sentence in Red China.

The decline of Christian efforts in China is vividly illustrated by Roman Catholic missionary statistics. In 1940, a year before the communist triumph, there were 3,380 Catholic foreign missionaries—bishops, priests, brothers, scholastics and nuns—active on the mainland. About one in 10 was American.

Four years later, the total was down to 723.

Problem Group

Between 1948 and 1959, says a church spokesman, a total of 510 American Catholic missionaries were expelled, a number of them after periods in prison or under house arrest.

Even more trying for the church was the formation in 1954 of the Patriotic Association of Chinese Catholics, which amounts to a Catholic church independent of the Vatican.

A papal encyclical issued in 1958 describes it as aimed "at making Catholics embrace the tenets of atheistic materialism by which God Himself is denied and principles of religion rejected."

Valid but Unlawful

The communist church, regarded by the Vatican as schismatic, has consecrated more than 30 Chinese bishops whose orders are "valid but unlawful" in the Vatican's view.

This means they have a bishop's powers but are not allowed to use them.

The Catholic church, however, maintains that most of the 3,300 Chinese Catholics counted in 1949 remain loyal to Rome.

Will Christianity ever return in strength to the Chinese mainland?

"Only when the Chinese Communists are overthrown," says the Rev. Francis De Masi, one of the Maryknoll missionaries now on Formosa.

State Delegate Contest Flares

Gentlemanly Beginnings Now Absent From Political Scene

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — The hot contest for Wisconsin Democratic national convention delegates, quiet and gentlemanly in its beginnings, may be approaching the blood-letting stage.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, generally accounted the underdog in his struggle with Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts in the April 5 presidential primary, is rapidly stepping up the tempo of his criticism of his rival glowingly described, in early stumping trips as his "great and good friend."

There are also signs of worry among leading Wisconsin Democrats, who want to stand above the fight, that if the intensity of the Humphrey-Kennedy bout increases it may leave wounds in the organization that will weaken it for the general election drive against the Republicans later in the year.

Shows Worry

Gov. Gaylord Nelson, who chose the role of referee in the fight, without special invitation from either side, reportedly told reporters that the campaign has not become as bitter as he feared it would be.

But the fact that he chose a public press conference to make his optimistic statement actually betrayed his worry that there may be some more angry developments before the fight ends with the all-out publicity efforts on both sides scheduled for next weekend.

Humphrey has shown an increasing irritation about the cool refusal of his rival to fight on ground of Humphrey's choosing.

Ignores Challenge

Kennedy has ignored Humphrey's repeated challenges to an oratorical duel on the platform — merely commenting when pressed by newsmen that he sees no point to such an exercise since he agrees with the Minnesota on most major questions of public policy. Debates ought to be confined to major expositions by aspirants for political leadership of opposing points of view, he says.

Sen. Humphrey, who relies heavily upon the farm vote in his campaign, has indignantly replied that he and Kennedy have glaringly different records on farm questions, and that Kennedy, in fact, has become a farm economics liberal only since he started running for the presidency.

Humphrey has bitterly responded that the primary is not a "beauty contest," and desired "polls and profiles," in an obvious and contemptuous reference to Sen. Kennedy's demonstrated appeal as a personality and his reputedly strong alliance on private polls as a guide to his campaign schedules and techniques.

Show Indignation

Sen. Humphrey has also shown an increasing resentment about what he calls Kennedy's unfair quota of publicity during his campaign, and the likelihood that some Republicans will enter the Democratic primary on Kennedy's side. Although Humphrey has regularly described himself as running from behind, some of his men have also shown some indignation about the general agreement by news media of Kennedy's lead in the contest. They appear to believe it may have something to do with media preference for Kennedy.

One of the curious aspects of the intensive struggle for Wisconsin presidential delegates of the Democratic party is the deliberately stand-offish attitude of its nominal leaders, Gov. Nelson and Sen. Proxmire.

Although there have been some reports that both men favor Kennedy and believe he is going to win decisively, they have carefully avoided any public record of their preference — if they have one. Their immediate associates have also been guarded in their comments and extremely careful in their activities. One result of that careful posture is that these men may be sacrificing place and influence in the future, if either Humphrey or Kennedy is nominated, or elected to the presidency.

Nelson's Campaign

Gov. Nelson, however, has the most to lose in immediate terms.

He is preparing for a reelection campaign on the realistic assumption that it will be a difficult one and that the Republican party will have a more united and stronger campaign effort this year than in 1958 when he unexpectedly defeated Vernon W. Thomson.

The all-out presidential delegate struggle contains seeds of danger for him on two counts:

1. It is using immense energy of Democratic organization workers, and unknown but obviously large sums of potential Democratic campaign contributions that might otherwise be held in reserve for the state ticket drive later.

2. It may "become so bitter and destructive that it would be impossible to repair the damage in party unity," as the governor put it in his press conference talk.

As the governor commented, the presidential candidates from other states are not concerned about such matters.

"Their objective is to win the nomination and the effect of the contest upon the Wisconsin Democratic organization is of secondary importance to them. This attitude is understandable; they are playing for big stakes."

Words for Lent

An Overlooked Secret

BY CHARLES M. CROWE

"Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant." — Matthew 20:27

Martin Luther said one time: "It looks like a great thing when a monk renounces everything, goes into a cloister, and lives a life of asceticism, fasts, watches and prays. . . . On the other hand, it looks like a small thing to cook, clean and do other housework. But if God's command is there, even such a lowly employment must be praised as a service to God, far surpassing the holiness, asceticism of all monks and nuns."

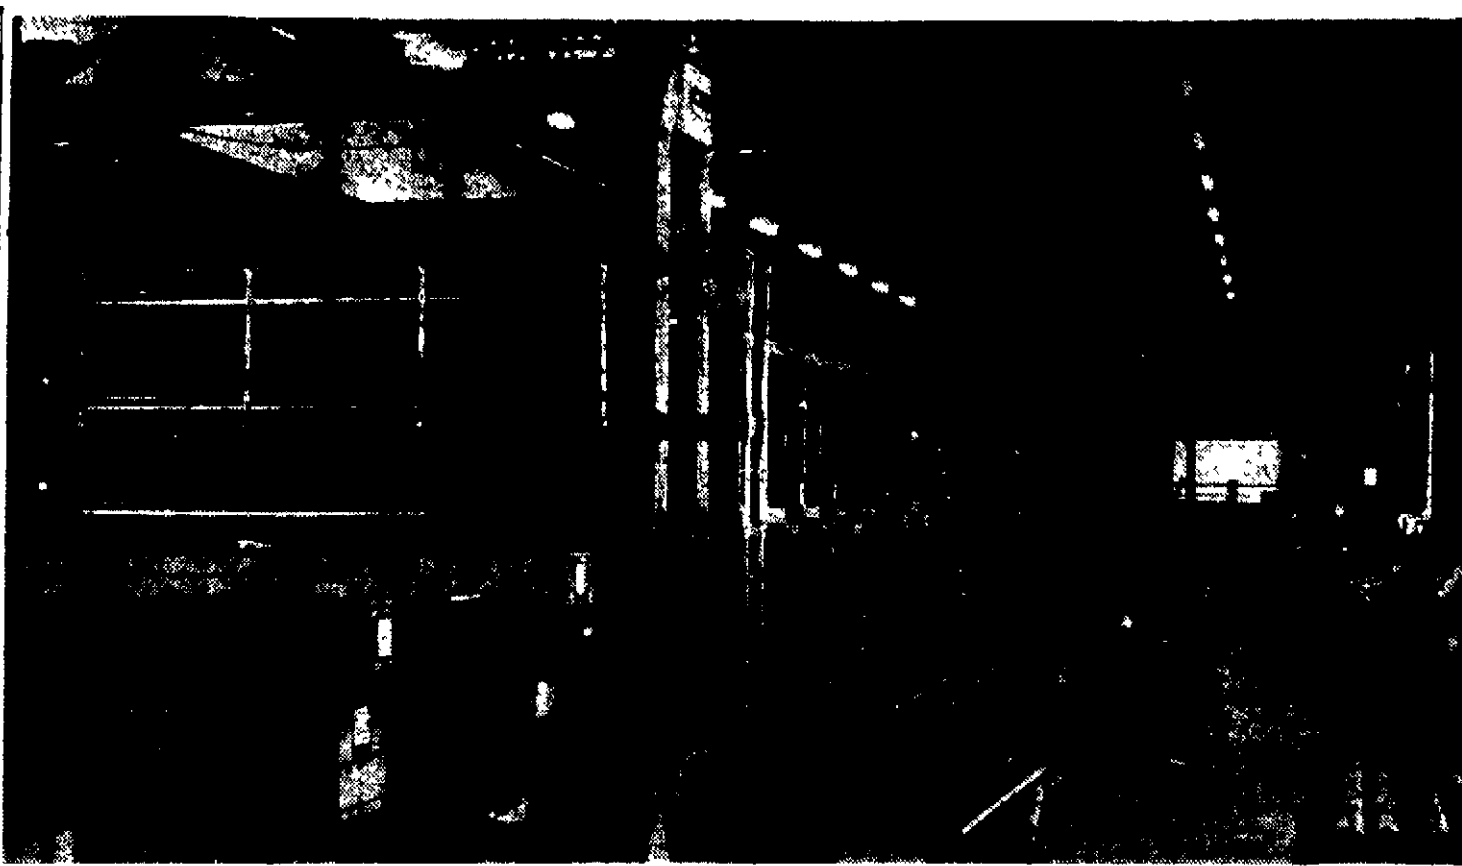

Even today we are tempted to draw too fine a line between the sacred and the secular. Religious devotion is not measured by our withdrawal from the world or by the acts of piety which we perform. It is measured by how well we carry out the will of God for our lives. Any honorable task, however humble, done as an offering unto God, may be an honest expression of faith.

There are many disciples in homespun and many a prayer is offered by busy hands. We do not have to live in a fearful isolation from the world to prove our faith. The Christian religion has never held that the business of living is an evil thing. Jesus the carpenter never discounted the workaday world. Indeed, it was His concern that faith in God should equip men with confidence and power for the normal duties of every day. Jesus wants us to be not saints but servants; not seers but workers; not holy persons but whole personalities. We are judged not so much by our profession but our performance when it comes to the quality of our religious faith.

Read: Matthew 2:20-23
PRAYER Heavenly Father, grant that the labors of our hands may be offered as a ministry unto Thee. In the name of Christ, Amen.

Trench Mouth or Vincent's Disease Cause of Bad Breath

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I shall appreciate any information as to how to prevent or improve the bad breath attributed to trench mouth. — H. R."

And, sir, I genuinely appreciate the way you offer your question — asking about bad breath from a particular cause, rather than asking about bad breath in general.

So-called trench mouth, or Vincent's disease, or whatever you may choose to call it, is one common cause of foul breath.

There are other causes: Diseased tonsils, sometimes; diseases affecting the nose; certainly conditions of the throat or bronchial passages, such as bronchiectasis, which permits formation of pockets of foul-smelling material.

So a general treatment for bad breath does not exist; there are, however, treatments for individual types, depending on the cause of each.

Inflammation of Gums

Trench mouth (or any of several other names sometimes applied to it) is an inflammation of the gums. It all starts without warning and creates a characteristic and unpleasant odor.

At least four types of bacteria are known to be associated with this condition. So you see, it is a disease involving germs. Exactly how and why the germs suddenly decide to start this evil activity — who knows? Who knows exactly why any disease acts as it does?

But torn or irritated gums seem to invite the disease, and a denture which does not fit properly or perhaps a filling with a sharp or rough edge, or a broken tooth is the sort of thing one is apt to find when this disease starts.

It is believed, and seems entirely reasonable, that anything which lowers a person's resistance must also be a contributing cause.

What to Do

What to do to relieve the odor? Get rid of the infection. Great care should be taken in regular mouth and tooth hygiene: Gentle brushing, rinsing and use of dental floss. I say gentle because the gums may bleed very easily and are tender. Anyway, all debris should be removed regularly, and sometimes a hydrogen peroxide rinse (12 per cent solution) is advised.

That's the patient's part of the job. Your dentist, on the other hand, must start you off by filling cavities, getting rid of pockets in the gums, removing calculus or other hard deposits which irritate the gum tissues. Since the disease has a strong tendency to spread to other parts of the mouth (lips, inside of the cheeks, tongue, etc.) it should be treated at once.

Treated quickly, it usually yields quickly, sometimes as soon as a couple of weeks. Allowed to spread to other parts of the mouth, it becomes more stubborn.

Hemorrhoids

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there such a thing as an 'inoperable hemorrhoid' caused by repeated childbirth?—Mrs. H. D."

No, there is no such thing as a hemorrhoid which is not amenable to surgery — no such thing as an "inoperable hemorrhoid," if surgery is necessary. My guess is that perhaps you were told that in your case the hemorrhoid was not serious enough to warrant surgery, the idea being that, with the pregnancy over, the problem might be cured naturally, with the pressures relieved.

Mumps Aftermath

NOTE TO R.T.E.: Mumps is known to be one of the causes of "one-sided" deafness. This, I think, may very well be the answer to your inquiry.

5 Drivers Pay For Causing Traffic Mishaps

2 Ignored Stop Signs, 2 Failed to Yield Right-of-Way

Five drivers were fined Friday in municipal court for traffic offenses which caused accidents.

Carol A. Davidson, Milwaukee, was fined $25 for ignoring a stop sign and causing an accident March 19 at Washington and Oneida streets.

Elaine M. Thoma, route 1, Tigerton, was fined $35 on a similar charge. She was in an accident at Mason street and Wisconsin avenue Thursday.

Both drivers were charged three points for the offense, three more for causing an accident, against their driving records.

More Accidents

Mary M. Schueller, 405 W. Lawrence street, was fined $25 for failing to yield the right-of-way and causing an accident Wednesday at Badger avenue and Eighth street. The offense cost her three points, the accident three more.

Anthony W. Goschler, 18, route 2, Appleton, was fined $35 and his driver's license was revoked for three months for failing to have his car under control and causing an accident Wednesday at College avenue and Walnut street. The offense will cost him two points, the accident three more.

Judge Oscar J. Schmiede stayed revocation on the conditions Goschler is not arrested for a moving traffic violation for the next year and attends safety school April 26.

High School Arrest

Harold Siebers, 44, of 315 Eden street, Kaukauna, was fined $20 for failing to yield the right-of-way and causing an accident in the town of Grand Chute Sunday. The offense cost him three points, the crash three more.

Robert J. Brumm, 17, of 1205 N. Harriman street, was ordered to pay $2.95 court costs and his driver's license was revoked for three months for driving too fast for conditions. No points are charged against his driver's record because of his age. The court stayed the last two months of the revocation on the conditions Brumm attends safety school and is not arrested for the next year for a moving traffic violation.

Brumm was charged with reckless driving, amended to the lesser charge upon the city's request, after police saw him driving carelessly in the vicinity of the Appleton High school during the noon hour.

Walter Van Eperen, Jr., 30, route 4, Appleton, forfeited $23.95 and was charged six points for driving 76 miles an hour in a 55-mile zone.

Alfred C. Trudell, 16, route 4, Appleton, was ordered to pay $3.95 court costs and his driver's license was revoked for 60 days for speeding. Revocation was withheld for the last 30 days on the conditions Trudell attends safety school and is not arrested for a moving traffic violation in the next year.

Kendall I. Galow, 23, Fond du Lac, was fined $15 and charged four points for illegal passing.

Jerdon M. Soles, 25, Waukesha, was fined $15 for permitting an unauthorized person to drive.

Driver, Passenger Hurt as Car Skids 150 Feet Into Pole

George W. Deltour, 18, of 1303 E. Amelia street, received a broken ankle and possible broken knee when the car in which he was riding skidded into a utility pole in the 900 block of S. Kernan avenue about 1:45 a. m. today. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Lindy's ambulance.

The car, driven by Kenneth F. Schwister, 19, route 2, Black Creek, skidded 150 feet into the pole, then spun around in the street. Schwister got a bruised cheek.

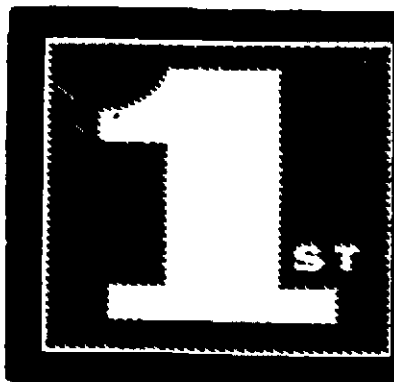

Raymond J. Bodway, 43, of 307 1/2 S. Schaefer street, lost control of his car in the 1200 block of W. Calumet street about 6:30 p. m. Friday and it traveled 144 feet across the street, then 255 feet back across the street into brush and a tree.

Looking things over about 7:35 p.m. Friday, firemen at the Badger-College-Story No. 3 fire station saw a car hit a gas pump and the pump burst into flame at the service station across the street.

Firemen walked across the street with a chemical extinguisher and put out the blaze. The car was owned by James Boyle, 807 E. Lindbergh st.

Refugee Aid Drive Begins In Churches

Council Urges Participation In Relief Plan

Sunday will mark the beginning of a nationwide effort to aid refugee victims of war disaster and political displacement.

The National Council of Christians and Jews has urged Americans to join with people in United Nations countries in supporting the effort.

"In all privately-inspired efforts to help these stricken people, the preponderance of the work is done, has been done and will be done by our great religious faith — Protestant, Catholic and Jewish," the council says.

Distribution Plan

"For years our American religious communities and their counterparts in other lands have labored to relieve suffering among the homeless and uprooted, sustaining widespread programs of resettlement, constructive development, rehabilitation and vocational training."

Many churches maintain year-around distributions of food and clothing, assist orphanages, schools and hospitals and carry on housing, tuberculosis and other health projects.

Currently, the American religious overseas aid agencies are appealing for funds with which to continue their work.

On Sunday in Protestant and Catholic churches throughout America responses will be made to the Protestant One Great Hour of Sharing appeal and to the Catholic Bishops' Relief Fund appeal.

Similarly, the national Jewish community will be giving support to the United Jewish appeal, a continuing effort with special emphasis at this season.

"This sharing with those in need abroad is in the highest American tradition. Voluntary assistance to the suffering, neighbor helping neighbor, is a basic spirit of Americanism. And in today's world, every man — everywhere — is a neighbor," the council said.

Building Firm Opens Fox Cities Office

Modern American Home Builders of the Fox River Valley, Inc., has opened an office on Winnebago County Trunk P between Appleton and Menasha. Howard Corning, Neenah, is district supervisor and Robert Heckel, Kaukauna, is production manager. John Vishnensky, Milwaukee, is president.

The company also has offices in Oshkosh, West Bend, Milwaukee, Racine, Wauwatosa and Minneapolis.

The New Comet Is Now on Display at Al Rudolf Motors Inc., 300 N. Superior street. It combines economy with tasteful styling. Although it is two to three feet shorter than the standard size cars, the Comet has travel room for a family of six and their luggage. All Comets — the two and four-door sedans and the two and four-door station wagons — are powered with a cost-saving six cylinder engine and are available with either automatic or manual transmissions. The car's 114-inch wheelbase, longest in the Comet's field, gives driver and passengers an excellent ride.

Would You Like a Lift With Spring Housecleaning, asks Tschank & Christensen, 423 W. College avenue. Well, maybe not with a mop and pail, but the company suggests it is the time to replace worn out furnaces and tired old filters. Call Domestic Heating Service, division of Tschank & Christensen, at RE 3-4965 and have one of these trucks come speeding out to help you with your problems.

Replace an old worn out furnace, have a change made to a new clear air filter and eliminate much of your dust and other cleaning problems, advises Peter Christensen of Tschank and Christensen.

It is the time of the year when smudge and soot marks are the most noticeable and this is the time to call in the heating experts to see what can be done about them.

The firm is Appleton's oldest heating company and began 40 years ago. It is a company which was built on service, Christensen said. He said when you buy Lennox gas or oil heating equipment, Tschank & Christensen becomes obligated to you. "Our obligation is to make sure that you get your full money's worth from what is a major investment."

There is a pre-season sale going on at the company these days. It is possible to get new and used oil and coal furnaces at great savings. Call now for a better furnace in your home. The number is RE 3-4965.

Hollywood — Actor Audie Murphy and his wife Pamela are separating.

One-Cent Sale, Walgreen Tradition, will be featured at both Look Drug stores in Kaukauna next week. The Look Drug stores are Walgreen Agencies and are located at 112 E. Second street, and 106 W. Wisconsin avenue.

For many, many years, Walgreen Drug stores have traditionally offered one-cent sales. This meant that for a certain period of time when a customer bought one of the special items, he received a second item for one cent. The sales occur twice a year, and next week marks the spring event all over the country.

The two Look Drug stores in Kaukauna will offer this chance to save to their customers, also. The Number 1 store, which is located at 112 E. Second street, and the Number 2 store, at 106 W. Wisconsin avenue. The Look Drug store has been serving members of this community since 1911 and the Number 1 store alone has filled over half a million prescriptions.

Over the intervening years, the store has expanded and been remodeled. Although the stores have grown, the company has never lost sight of the individual customer's needs, the company added.

Down through the years — and still true today — the most important part of Look's business is the prescription department.

Be sure to visit the Look Drug stores this week. Telephone numbers are RO 6-4661 for Number 1; and RO 6-1575 for Number 2.

Gerbers Offers Nutritious Meats Strained for Babies

Less than fifteen years ago, meats were almost the last foods included in a baby's diet. "Even then, the high nutritive values and digestibility of lean meats were recognized," reports Miss Edna Mae McIntosh, Gerber Baby Foods Nutritionist. "But, it was simply too much trouble and often too expensive to prepare meats in the proper form at home."

Nowadays mothers can purchase especially processed, strained or junior meats in convenient small containers at an economical price.

Gerber offers more than a dozen varieties of strained and junior meats for babies and toddlers.

Gerber baby food specialists and Armour meat experts worked together to develop and produce these meats, which are prepared by specially designed equipment. The unique processing of carefully selected and trimmed meats keeps fat content at a minimum. Natural juices are retained and texture and consistency are pleasantly smooth for easy feeding.

Today, many doctors suggest that strained meats be started at about the same early age as cereals. Some even prefer that they be the first solid food. However, the Gerber nutritionist suggests that each mother check with her baby's doctor before starting meats.

Meats supply many nutrients important to babies and young children. Foremost are their complete, high quality proteins which are used for growth and maintenance of every body cell. Meats are among the best sources of iron and phosphorus, and early feeding of meats has been shown to promote hemoglobin and red blood cell formation in babies.

Kennedy-Humphrey Excitement

Gov. Gaylord Nelson, who has appointed himself the unofficial umpire of the Democratic contest now going on between Sens. Kennedy and Humphrey, can expect some verbal brickbats and pop bottles to come hurtling his way for that is the fate of all umpires. Sen. Proxmire, who has chosen to play the role of the excited and enthusiastic fan, occasionally finds it possible to point out errors or misplays by the candidates before the umpire gets around to it. Politics is a great game and the Wisconsin campaign was getting wide attention before the governor and the Wisconsin senator appeared on the scene to add to the excitement. The Republicans, with Vice President Nixon unopposed in his quest for the Republican vote in Wisconsin, now are discovering that they are apt to be members of the forgotten party in the April 5th election if the Democrats can maintain interest in their candidates. The result is that Claude J. Jasper, chairman of the Republican party in Wisconsin, and other Republican leaders, both state and national, are calling upon the Wisconsin voters to stand firm by their own party and vote the Republican ticket in the April 5th primary. This is a new role for the Republican leaders in Wisconsin. In previous elections Democratic leaders appealed in vain to the members of their party to vote Democratic and forego the pleasure of crossing over to mark Republican ballots. Now the appeal is coming from the Republicans and we suspect it is being directed largely at the same people who formerly were addressed by the Democratic leaders. This is possible because, in between the two parties in Wisconsin there is a great mass of independent voters. Because the state has an open primary in which any voter may choose his ticket freely without regard to previous registration as a member of a party, the independent voters get in some of their best licks. In the past the Republican leaders have said the independent voters were Democrats crossing over to insure the nomination of the Republican easiest for the Democrats to defeat. Now the Democrats are making the same claim against the potential Republican cross-overs. No one knows of course why voters mark their ballots as they do. But it is extremely doubtful if any important number of Democratic voters ever came into the Republican polls with the idea of nominating the candidate easiest to defeat. Also, it is unlikely that any important number of Republicans will in fact be voting the Democratic ticket with the notion of nominating the man easiest for the Republicans to defeat. Most voters are far too serious about the business of voting or too emotional in their choice of candidates to permit them to deliberately vote for a person they have put down as unworthy of serving. In the present campaign, many Republicans will cross over and mark Democratic ballots in the primaries. It is highly probable that those of Republican persuasion, regardless of their religious affiliation, will vote for Kennedy but not because they think he will be the easiest for the Republicans to defeat. He will be their choice as between Kennedy and Humphrey. It is hard to picture a voter with Republican leanings supporting Sen. Humphrey for the nomination without some special inducement which might seem more important at the moment than the general economic and social picture. The outlook now is for wholesale cross-overs by the nominally Republican voters. This is perfectly legal under the Wisconsin open primary law but, as the Republican leaders are busily pointing out, it may be very damaging in the long run to the Republican party. Those who believe in the Republican program and who want to insure the election of Richard Nixon as president would be well advised to stay in their own primaries. The leaders of the Republican party recognize this fact and are doing what they can to keep the voters at home in the Republican column — but the independent Wisconsin voters are not easily managed.

'Silver Tongued Commoner'

It may be something of a shock to a lot of Americans to realize that William Jennings Bryan was born 100 years ago. Somehow the ideas which he espoused seem very much a part of modern life. Bryan came to fame suddenly in the last decade of the nineteenth century because he was able to put into hypnotic words the rebellion of masses of people. His famous "cross of gold" speech given at the Democratic national convention swept him into the nomination. The small farmers, the laborers, the hungry, the oppressed, the radical, the outraged the malcontents, at last had a spokesman. The Populists, the Greenbackers, the Single Taxers and the Socialists wrested the party from the conservatism of Cleveland. He never got it back. One writer of the time, in relating the effect of Bryan upon a crowd said "they were only languidly interested in free silver, but they were down on money power. It was the first stirring of a huge revolt against plutocracy. Free silver happened to be the hallmark of the revolt but free copper or free mercury or free arsenic would do as well." In that election of 1896 Bryan garnered more than a million votes but it was not enough to withstand those who had rallied to McKinley in fear of Bryan's radicalism. Bryan was the party candidate twice more but never ran as well. Too many shared Woodrow Wilson's opinion that Bryan's theories were "foolish and dangerous" and that Bryan himself "should be knocked into a cocked hat." But that was before Wilson himself was in the running for the presidency when he went so far as to promise Bryan a cabinet position. Bryan, a foe of imperialism and international involvement from the days of our Philippine entanglement, was unable to justify Wilson's steps toward World War I. He resigned as secretary of state in 1915 and came out of retirement only in the shameful days of the Scopes trial. His death soon afterwards probably was as much because of his feeling of disgrace as it was from physical reasons. Ironically, most of the social reforms Bryan spoke for in the days when they were considered almost communistic since have been woven into our government. But the suspicion remains that Bryan was not so much a prophet or a man born too soon as simply the mouthpiece of his era. His tragedy was that he conceived few of the theories he backed and was woefully unable to adapt them to meet the changing world.

Looking Backward

15 Employees at Appleton Foundry

100 YEARS AGO Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of March 24, 1860. We confess that we were very much surprised when we came to visit the Appleton Foundry on Saturday at the extent of its machinery and facilities for doing business and the number of hands employed. No less than 15 persons were as busy as nailers and it was quite evident that Messrs. Ketchum and Hildreth would soon be obliged to increase the force. The plows, fitted out complete, sell at a lower price than imported plows and as yet they have had no complaints relative to their excellence although the sales have been quite large. They have been doing a large business in the line of cast iron kettles. They have a handsome display of castings and they have done some of the nicest work we have seen lately. Their machine for the manufacture of screws was new to us and it worked admirably. Of patterns for all kinds of castings, they have a host and are continually adding more. We learn that the firm will embark on the manufacture of stoves during the coming summer. 25 YEARS AGO Saturday, March 23, 1935 The $4,880,000.000 work-relic bill, with numerous modifications including a modified silver inflation plan, was passed by the senate. Surrounded by Philippine and American officials long concerned in the Philippines fight for independence, President Roosevelt approved the recently-drafted insular constitution. By that action the United States completed the last American step necessary for the establishment of commonwealth or home-rule government in Manila on Nov. 15. Mrs. George B. Baldwin, Appleton, was exhibiting a collection of old French fans, oil paintings, antique lace and objects of art at the Onokosh museum. The collection included nearly 100 old fans in cases. Mrs. C. C. Hervey and Mrs. S. F. Darling were co-chairmen of a dessert-bridge that was to be given by the recreational department of Appleton Woman's club. Alex. Womack, Menasha, was selected Menasha's new police chief at an adjourned meeting of the fire and police commission. 10 YEARS AGO Saturday, March 25, 1950 Senate investigators appeared to be nearing a showdown with Sen. McCarthy on the "spy for Russia" case which he calls a test of his communism-in-the-state department charges. Reinhold Harp and Harvey Jamison were elected president and secretary-treasurer for the coming year by the board of directors of the Outagamie County Fruit Growers association. The state legislature was to be asked at its next session to pass a law giving counties the authority to make and enforce regulations regarding electrical inspections, the Wisconsin chapter of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors decided. Miss Lois Gehrke, Black Creek, was elected president of the students chapter of the conference at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind. Nathan Wanda was registered as secretary of the 14th annual Mayor club in Neenah. City Clerk R. V. Hauser reported that morning.

The Monitor Vs. the Merrimac

'I Fired First Shot' of Civil War Battle

Young Officer Tells About Experiences

U. S. Steamer Monitor Hampton Roads March 14/62 I commence this now but I don't know when I shall finish as I have to write at odd moments when I can find a few minutes rest. When I bid Charley good bye

A very young lieutenant, S. Dana Greene, suddenly found himself in command of the Monitor during its crucial battle with the Merrimac nearly 100 years ago. He fought bravely, along with his crew, and was congratulated afterwards for "the greatest naval battle on record." His fascinating account of the conflict, the storm that almost sank the Monitor before it could fire a shot in anger, and his own reactions appear in the letter he wrote home shortly afterwards. The letter is now the property of Warren C. Shearman of Los Angeles.

On Wednesday the 5th I confidently expected to see you the next day as I then thought it would be impossible to finish our repairs on Thursday but the mechanics worked all night and at 11 a.m. we started down the harbor. At Governor's Island the Steamer Seth Low came alongside and took us in tow. We went out, passed the Narrows with a light wind from the west, and very smooth water. The weather continued the same all Thursday night. I turned out at 6 o'clock on Friday morning and from that time until Monday at 7 p.m. I think I lived ten good years. About noon the wind freshened and the sea was quite rough. In the afternoon it was breaking over our decks at a great rate, and coming in our hawse pipe in perfect floods.

Nearly Suffocated

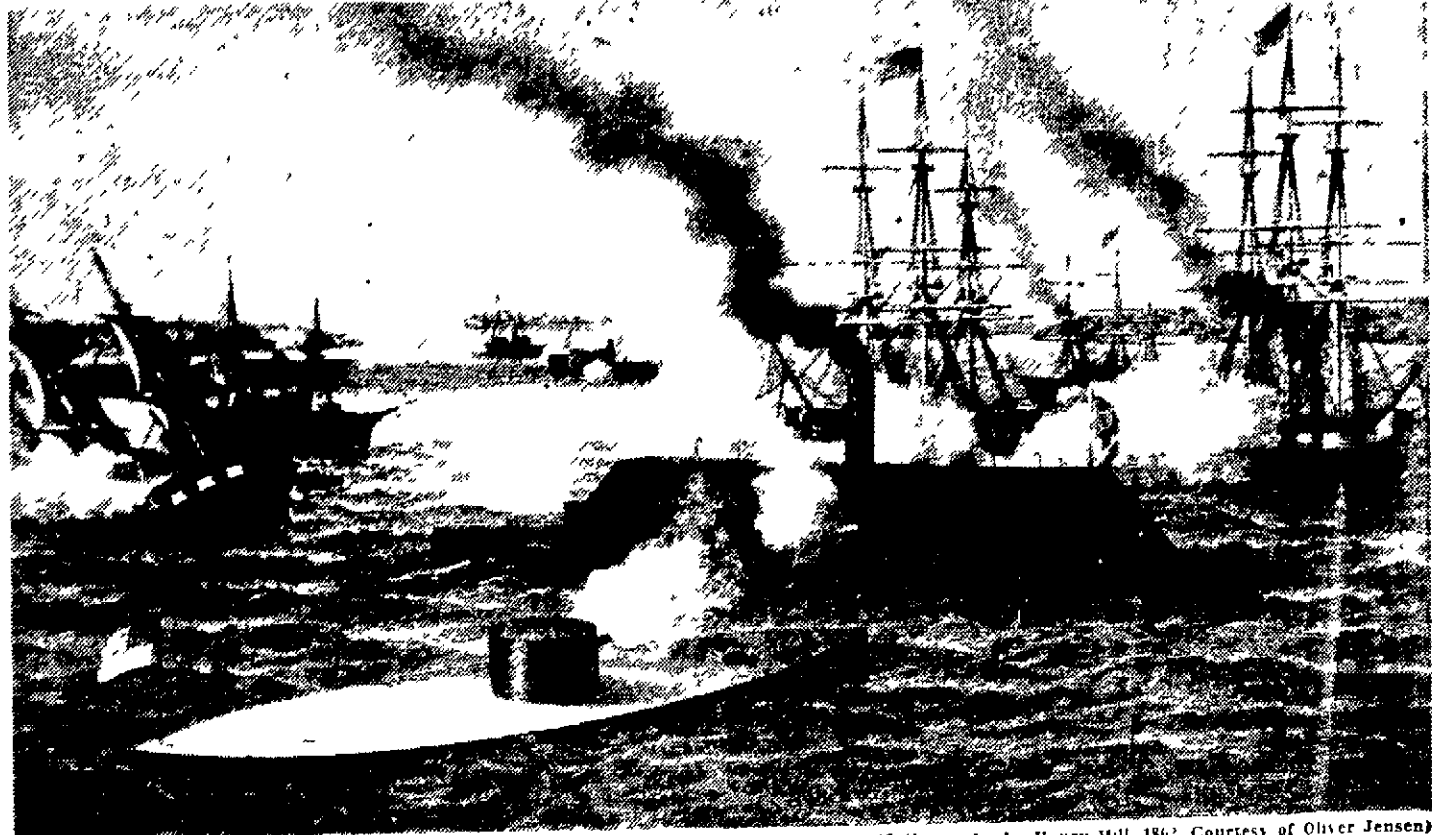

At 4 p.m. the water had gone down our smoke stacks and blowers to such an extent that the blowers gave out, and the engine room was filled with gas. I jumped into the room and carried my men on top of the tower to get fresh air. I was nearly suffocated with gas myself, but got on deck just in time. What to do now we did not know. We had done all in our power, and must let things take their own course. We hailed the tug boat and told them to steer direct for the shore, in order to get in smooth water. After 5 hours of hard steering we got in smooth water. At 8 p.m. we managed to get the engines to go.

Southside Ravine Could be Converted to Sports Stadium

Editor, Post-Crescent: Reading a recent Post-Crescent I noted comment concerning a place for the Appleton High school football team to play its games. Since this touches on a subject that has interested me for some years, I am moved to call your attention to something which ought to be considered in any discussion of this subject. When Lawrence college bought the property across the river now occupied by the Institute of Paper Chemistry, the Alexander gymnasium and Whiting field, there remained a ravine just east and adjoining the latter which is a natural amphitheatre. Indeed, it is the right size and almost an ideal site for an athletic stadium. The college has hoped some day to develop it for that purpose and it was actually in the thinking from the time the property was acquired.

The idea has remained dormant ever since because no one came forward to carry out the plan of utilizing it and the college had more pressing things to take its attention. This site, by the way, included enough land to provide considerable parking space, part of which bordered the approach to the old John street bridge. When the new high level bridge was planned the state condemned a part of the parking area to make an approach road to the Interlake Mill and when I was asked to sign the deed on behalf of the college, I objected because I felt it would be detrimental to the eventual carrying out of the stadium project. The taking of this land could have been avoided if the road were left where it was and a retaining wall erected to permit that being done. I took the matter up with Mayor Mitchell, the city engineer, one of the aldermen from that ward and others. I also went to the state highway commission and pointed out to all of them the short-sightedness of their plan, but I got no where. The ravine can still be used for a stadium site as our hawser must surely part. Fortunately it was a new one and held on well.

Ready for Action

About 8 a.m. things again were a little quiet for we were in smooth water but everything wet and uncomfortable below. I was busy all day making out my station bills. At 4 p.m. we passed Cape Henry, and heard heavy firing in the direction of Fortress Monroe. As we approached, it increased, and we immediately cleared ship for action. We spoke (to) a pilot boat and were told that the Cumberland was sunk, and the Congress was on fire, and had surrendered to the Merrimac. We did not credit it at first, but as we approached Hampton Roads, we could see the fine old Congress burning. We vowed vengeance on the Merrimac, if it should be our lot to fall in with her.

At 9 p.m. we anchored near the frigate Roanoke the flag ship, and then received orders to proceed to Newport News, and protect the Minnesota, which was aground from the Merrimac. I told their captain that we would do all in our power to protect him from the attack of the Merrimac.

At daylight we discovered the Merrimac at anchor, with several vessels under her guns. We immediately made preparation for the battle. At 8 a.m. on Sunday the Merrimac got under weigh accompanied by several steamers and steered direct for the Minnesota. When a mile distant she fired two guns at the Minnesota.

As the Merrimac came closer the captain passed the word to commence firing. I tried up the port run the gun out and fired the first gun and thus commenced the great battle between the Monitor and Merrimac. Now mark the condition our men were in. Since Friday morning 48 hours they had had no rest, and very little food, as we could not conveniently cook. As for myself I had not slept a wink for 51 hours and had been on my feet almost constantly. But after the first gun was fired we forgot all fatigue, hard work, and everything else — and went to work fighting as hard as men ever fought. We loaded and fired as fast as we could — I pointed and fired the guns myself. Five times during the engagement we touched each other and I will vouch the 168 pounds penetrated her sides (An error Merrimac's armor was cracked, but no shots came through.) Once she tried to run us down with her iron prow, but did no damage whatever. After fighting two hours, we hauled off for half an hour to hoist our shot into the tower. At it we went again as hard as we could. The shot, shell, grape, canister, musket, and rifle balls flew about in every direction but did us no damage. Our tower was struck several times and though the noise was pretty loud it did not affect us any. At about 11:30 the captain sent for me. There stood as noble a man as lives at the foot of the ladder of the pilot house. His face was perfectly black and he was apparently perfectly blind. He said a shot had struck the pilot house exactly opposite his eyes and blinded him, and was present, the other two had been disposed of by the Confederate ironclad the day before. Neither the Monitor nor the Merrimac was badly damaged.

Less Junk Could Lower Mail Rates

From The Cincinnati Enquirer. Proposes increasing the first class mail rate from four to five cents the postcard rate from three to four and the air mail stamp from seven to eight. But even as the proposals were tendered by Postmaster Gen. Arthur E. Summerfield influential members of congress were indicating that no action would be forthcoming in this election year. The senate GOP leader Sen. Everet M. Dirksen of Illinois, commented wryly that there is never any great enthusiasm in congress for making things cost more. Resistance to the move was to be expected. The last increase was less than two years ago and another effort to boost the price of stamps was made in 1959. Congress is likely to fear — and with a reason — that the government is making too much of a good thing. Blended increases in postal rates could be something like a federal sales tax, slightly hidden. The temptation to make the government bear a part of the cost of a general contraction of government could be very powerful, once the post office department is put on a "paying basis," where it is.

When the impression prevails in the post office department that it might be able to balance its own budget if there were no loss on the delivery of "junk" mail, there is a lot of it around. You needn't ask any householder.

UCS Division
Heads Named
Changes Made
In Red Feather
Campaign Structure

Department and committee chairmen for the next year are Wilmer Stach, chairman, and Charles Heeter, vice-chairman of the research and planning department; Mrs. Harry W. Brown, chairman of the public information department; Marvin Heiden, chairman, and William McGraw, co-chairman of the campaign department; Mrs. Joseph Foley, chairman of the budget department; C. A. Pertain, chairman of the office management committee; and F. H. Orbison, chairman of the nominating committee.

Last year Stach was chairman of the youth committee, and Heeter was chairman of the research and planning department. They report that a plan for coordinating services for transients in the community will be presented at the next meeting of the department.

Campaign Structure
Mrs. Brown says plans include a public relations institute for welfare agencies and are revamping "Front", the UCS information bulletin.

The campaign department has reorganized the Red Feather campaign structure and is selecting division chairmen for the fall campaign, according to Heiden. He served as co-chairman of the 1959 campaign and McGraw has been special gifts chairman for several years.

Mrs. Foley has been a member of the budget committee and is a past president of the Visiting Nurse association. The budget committee will hold quarterly meetings with the Red Feather agencies on March 28 and 29. A budget manual outlining UCS budgeting policies and procedures is being prepared.

New Books
Sketches Supplement Volume
On Spanish-American War

American trouble with Cuba is not new. In fact, Cuba was the source of pain and death at the end of the 19th century when American soldiers were sent there to fight for its freedom from Spain.

The story of the invasion of Cuba and a soldiers-eye view of the Spanish-American war is the subject of "The Little War of Private Post," one of 27 new non-fiction books at Appleton Public Library. Eleven new fiction volumes also have been added.

Charles Johnson Post was a free lance writer and magazine illustrator. The story of his little war is told adequately in both word and sketch. The terror of war and disease contrasted to the almost unbelievable and funny four-ups in supplies — woolen uniforms issued to soldiers and the Rough Riders weren't given horses — make the book fast and interesting reading.

On the political - foreign scene, two new books deal with Asia and Russia. Former governor of New York Averell Harriman is the author of "Peace With Russia?" Harriman studies changes in the Kremlin and what the changes will mean to the U.S. The people of Asia are the author of the second book, "Asia, through Asian Eyes," edited by Baldoon Dharma, a collection of parables, poetry, proverbs, stories and epigrams designed to give insight into the Asian mind.

Two new how-to books also are featured. One is "Small Car Guide," specifications, prices and road tests of 55 new small cars. It is written by Alben Phillips. The other is a guide to "Mobile Homes and Travel Trailers." It includes information on financing, state regulations, and touring the United States and Europe.

Blood and the circulatory system is the subject of a new volume by Isaac Asimov, an instructor in the department of biochemistry at Boston university school of medicine. "The Living River" explains how the system works and changes and outlines the chemical composition.

This is the season of panic or unbounded joy in colleges throughout the United States. The source of all this emotion is a city called Fort Lauderdale.

"Where the Boys Are" is the title of a book and future movie that explains the great migration to Fort Lauderdale during college spring vacations. Glendon Swarthout, author of "They Came to Cordura" has written a tale of beachcombing, partying and fun from the point of view of a female college freshman.

Other new fiction selections are "Night Without End," by Alistair MacLean, the story of an odd assortment of survivors of a plane crash on the Greenland ice cap and "Johnny Osage," by Janice Holt Giles, a colorful story of the Kentucky frontier.

AVS Offers Course In Small Engines
The Appleton Vocational and Adult school will conduct a 10-unit course in operation and maintenance of small 2-cycle and 4-cycle gasoline engines.

Motors which are used to power lawn mowers, wash machines, motor vehicles and other types of equipment will be studied.

Francis Ankerson, mechanical instructor, will conduct all classes.

Classes will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 5. Registrations are being taken by phone or at the vocational school office.

Non-Support Count
Raymond Butelewski, New London, was placed on two year's probation Friday in municipal court on a charge of non-support and an assignment of his wages was ordered. He was arrested on complaint of failing to support his four minor children, aged 9 through 17.

CD Division Chiefs Prepare For Cutting

No Department
Regular Employees
To Lose Their Jobs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Dozens of division chiefs and bureau heads of the Wisconsin Conservation department today braced themselves for the unaccustomed task of cutting their expenditure schedules to accommodate the first significant reversal of revenue trends in about two decades.

The Conservation commission ordered Friday, after a month of consultation with the professional office-holders, a $2,000,000 cut-back of the budget of the agency for the next two years earlier approved.

Commissioners conceded in their brief public comments that the job was a difficult one and that the division chiefs didn't like it.

But on closer examination it turned out that the bulk of the retrenchment will be from planned expansion, rather than from existing programs.

15 Per Cent

The reduction in hoped-for spending will amount to about 15 per cent, and will be more if the legislature doesn't grant the pleas of the commission for a park admissions sticker law and an appropriation of general tax funds for the financing of the restored animal predator bounty program.

There is a good chance that the legislature which declined both propositions last year will walk again when it returns on May 16, according to Capitol observers.

But no regular department employee will lose his job. Basic programs will be continued, and the originally planned enlargement of the wetlands buying program for the game division will be continued without basic adjustment. Most of the economies will be in non-essentials, and in trimming travel budgets and employment of seasonal helpers for the major enforcement, fish, game and forestry divisions.

Commissioners voted the new budget with little comment, after elaborate explanations by Charles F. Smith of Wausau, chairman of a special finance committee, but John Lynch of Superior, new Democratic member recently chosen by Gov. Nelson, explained that he voted a dissent pending a more complete study of the adjustments involved.

Braves Send 3 Pitchers To Minors

Bradenton, Fla. —(U)—The Milwaukee Braves continued their cutdown Friday by sending three young righthanders to minor league farm clubs.

Winston Brown, who had a 15-14 record with Sacramento last season, was sent back on option to that Pacific Coast league team. Tony Diaz, 12-10 at Austin in the Texas league in 1959, was optioned to Louisville in the American association while Claude Raymond, 4-7 at Atlanta of the Southern association last year, was shipped to Louisville. Raymond is the only one of the trio not on the Braves' roster.

Cubs Decide to Train At Mesa Camp Again

Mesa, Ariz. —(U)—The Chicago Cubs will make Mesa their spring training grounds again for 1961. The Cubs and interested organizations agreed verbally Friday that the team will train in Mesa next season for the tenth straight year.

Chisox and Pirates Continue Habit of Winning 1-Run Tilts

Pittsburgh Nips Nats, 9-8, for Ninth Straight

By The Associated Press

It's time to start taking those exhibition baseball standings seriously. The Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates are on top because they both have the 1-run, extra inning winning habit.

That's why the White Sox won the American league pennant last year and that's why the Pirates could have won the National if they hadn't picked up the bad habit of losing on the road.

Both scored 1-run victories Friday. The Pirates ran their NL-leading exhibition record to 9-3 with a 9-8 triumph over Washington at Orlando. It was the Pirates' ninth straight victory.

The White Sox, atop the AL with a 9-4 mark, beat Kansas City, 6-5, in 13 innings at Sarasota. The Sox have won three of four 1-run games. The Pirates also have lost only one of four 1-run games.

Sure, it's all in spring training, but you just can't kiss off those figures when you consider the Pirates led the majors last season with 36 1-run victories. And that the White Sox had the best one-run percentage (.700 on 35 and 15). Pittsburgh dropped 19 by one run.

Cubs Triumph

The Chicago Cubs also turned in a 1-run victory, 4-3 over the Boston Red Sox at Scottsdale, but the other Arizona game was a 1-sided show. The San Francisco Giants laced the Cleveland Indians, 14-1, at Phoenix.

In other Florida action, the New York Yankees blanked the Milwaukee Braves, 4-0, at Bradenton. The St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds, 8-3, at St. Petersburg. The Philadelphia Phillies took the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, 8-2, in 13 innings and at Miami in a night game. Baltimore beat Los Angeles, 3-1.

The Cubs took advantage of a 2-base throwing error by Boston third baseman Ray Webster and a wild pitch by Tom Borland for their deciding run.

Willie Kirkland hit two homers — his fifth and sixth — for the Giants and Willie Mays and Joe Amalfitano also

Gottlieb Starled

Say Wilt Was Offered $100,000 Per Season

Philadelphia —(U)—Eddie Gottlieb, owner of the Philadelphia Warriors, says he'll meet with his star rookie Wilt Chamberlain, next week and try to change his mind about quitting the National Basketball association.

The 7-1 Negro, who cracked the NBA's single-season scoring and rebounding records and several other marks in his first season, stunned the sports world Friday by announcing he's quitting.

Gottlieb would neither confirm nor deny reports he had offered Chamberlain a 3-year contract for approximately $100,000 a season. He reportedly received $50,000 this year, making him the highest paid player in the NBA.

The Warriors' owner said he

Another Nixon Deal Proposed

Lane Telephones Harris With New Offer

Scottsdale, Ariz. —(U)—Another trade has been proposed by which Boston could keep catcher Russ Nixon after baseball Commissioner Ford Frick voided the original deal.

Cleveland General Manager Frank Lane telephoned Red Sox GM Bucky Harris Friday suggesting a new deal for Nixon.

Earlier in the day Frick had wired both men that since Sammy White had publicly announced his retirement he was ordering Nixon returned to Cleveland and utility man Jim Marshall sent back to Boston.

After a long talk with Lane, Harris commented: "I can't wreck my whole club to keep Nixon as much as I'd like to have him stay with us."

Apparently Lane had asked for more than Harris felt he could give up for the left-handed catcher. But the book is not closed. Harris says he will huddle with Manager Billy Jurges.

was startled by Chamberlain's announcement. Coach Neil Johnson and Wilt's teammates also were taken by surprise. All said he had not mentioned quitting to them.

Talked With Him

"I talked with him last week," Gottlieb said. "I made him an offer. There was nothing definite. I understood we would discuss it further. That $100,000 figure must have been gotten from him. You know I never disclose figures. As far as I'm concerned if he wants to play it's up to him."

"I expect to talk to Wilt again Monday."

Chamberlain could not be reached at home Friday night for comment. A married sister, Yvonne Taylor, said he was out of town.

Mrs. Taylor referred to a statement Chamberlain made to Ike Gellis, sports editor of the New York Post:

"If I continue I feel it might be bad for me and my race. If I come back and score less than I did last year, I may lose my poise and I don't want that. I want to keep my equilibrium. I have achieved everything a man can achieve in pro basketball."

Some Connection

Chamberlain told newsmen that racial problems had "some connection with my decision but that wasn't the entire reason." He did not elaborate, other than to say he was not referring to his teammates.

"I don't think he realized the physical punishment he would have to take," said Johnston. "He took more than his share."

Chamberlain previously had complained of rough treatment and double and triple teaming by opposing teams to keep his scoring and rebounding down.

In Los Angeles, the Examiner said today that Chamberlain likely will play pro ball there next year. The paper said Chamberlain "is scheduled to become the nucleus for a new pro league headed by Abe Saperstein." No sources were quoted.

The possibility of a new league was discussed by Saperstein and others in Chicago this week but no decision was reached.

Bobcats and Mustang Six Meet Tonight

Fourth Game of Playoff Series Set for Sunday

Green Bay — Intent upon capturing the Central Hockey league's playoff cup to go with their regular season championship trophy, the Green Bay Bobcats battle the Rochester Mustangs at the Brown County arena tonight in the third game of their showdown series.

The fourth game of the series, presently tied at 1-1, will be played Sunday afternoon, starting at 2:30. If a fifth game is needed to settle the issue, it will be played at 8 o'clock Sunday night.

The Bobcats, who gained the playoff finals with a four-game semi-final sweep against the Marquette Sentinels, won the series opener at Rochester last Saturday, 6-5, but the Mustangs bounced back with a top-sided 11-4 triumph Sunday.

Green Bay's skaters hold a 6-2 edge in their season rivalry but the CHL rivals, Player-Coach Johnny Mayasich insists, will be starting from scratch tonight. "With a new, young line of Mike Castellano, Dave Frank and Gordy Gosselin, plus the addition of defenseman Ray Karnuth and Larry Lawman, Rochester is a much improved club," he says.

Two Hurt

Further, two members of the Bobcats are troubled with injuries, although both are expected to play. They are center Paul Johnson, who suffered a foot injury at Rochester last weekend, and defenseman Tom Neveau, struck in the face by a deflected puck in practice this week. The wound near his left eye, required four stitches.

Mayasich considers the issue a tossup. "I'm sure both teams will be going all out because these probably will be the last games of the season," he said. "For that reason I feel it's going to be the fastest series of the year."

"I'm positive we'll be going all out," he added. "It wouldn't be too pleasant to win the league championship and lose the playoffs. We have a lot at stake."

Bradenton, Fla. —(U)—The $40,000 De Soto Lakes Golf tournament went into its third round today with 17 players bunched within five strokes, but little Jerry Barber is the pacesetter.

The Los Angeles mite shot his weight—137—for the first two rounds and was two strokes ahead of his closest rivals over the 6,902-yard par 71 DeSoto Lakes course.

At 130 were Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., and Mike Dietz of Phoenix, Ariz.

Packers Seek 5,000 More Stadium Seats

Pro Club Proposes Rent Hike

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — A plan to use $100,000 of city money to build a 5,000-seat addition to City stadium and get $140,000 back from the Packer corporation over 10 years was sent to the City council finance committee Friday by the Stadium commission.

The Packer proposal was outlined at a meeting of the commission, which has been negotiating with the Packers over methods of financing an addition to raise City stadium capacity to 37,000. In sending the plan to the finance committee, the commission endorsed the "type of financing" but took no vote on the amounts involved.

The commission recommended that the proposal be discussed by the finance committee at a session to which other aldermen, the commission and the Packer corporation executive committee would be invited. City council approval would be required for the ultimate agreement.

$100,000 From Surplus

The plan would involve use of an estimated $100,000 from the city surplus account, which stands at about $300,000. The Packers propose to pay back the money advanced for construction plus the added $40,000 by increasing stadium rent for 1960, and 1961 from $30,000 to $50,000 and by paying rent of $42,500 for the following eight years.

In a poll of commission members, Ronald McDonald expressed disappointment that the offer did not include a flat

Paul Seymour May Replace Ed Macauley

St. Louis —(U)—The St. Louis Hawks collide with the underdog Minneapolis Lakers today in the deciding game of the bitterly contested Western division playoffs of the National Basketball association, amid assurances that Hawk Coach "Easy" Ed Macauley will be replaced regardless of the outcome.

Hawk owner Ben Kerner strongly denied he plans any coaching change but The Associated Press learned Friday night from an authoritative source that Macauley will be replaced by Paul Seymour sometime after the Hawks complete playoff action.

The source said Macauley will announce his resignation as coach but will be retained as a vice president and general manager in the last year of a 3-year contract.

'Red' Continues to Pound Ball; Mantilla Gives Logan Battle

Bradenton, Fla. —(U)—"Red" Schoendienst, the veteran Milwaukee second baseman, continues to pound the ball hard in spring exhibition games.

Schoendienst got two more hits Friday in the game against the New York Yankees to run his hitting streak to seven straight games. He also boasts a .430 average.

Felix Mantilla is giving Johnny Logan a battle for the Braves' shortstop spot. He has turned in some fine defensive plays and currently is batting .364. Logan, who reported

Yankees' Coates, Freeman Limit Braves to 6 Hits

Buhl Pitches His Best Ball Of Spring but Loses, 4-0

Bradenton, Fla. —(U)—The Milwaukee Braves could only get six hits off a pair of Yankee righthanders Friday and dropped a 4-0 decision to the New York club in an exhibition baseball game.

Milwaukee's Bob Buhl pitched his best ball of the year but lost his third start. He also was touched for a tremendous 435-foot home run by the Yanks' big Bill Skowron. Carl Greene worked the last two innings. The Yanks got to him for a pair of unearned runs in the ninth.

6 Baserunners

Jim Coates, the Yankee starter, allowed six Braves to get on base in the first four innings but held them scoreless. Mark Freeman finished and held the Milwaukee club to two hits in the final five innings.

Skowron's homer got the Yanks off to a 1-0 lead in the fourth and he sent home the second run in the sixth on an infield dribbler.

Milwaukee's best opportunity to avoid a shutout came in the first inning when "Red" Schoendienst and Eddie Mathews singled with one out. Henry Aaron fanned, however, and Joe Adcock popped up. Adcock and Eddie Haas started an abortive rally with singles in the sixth but Felix Mantilla forced Adcock at third after failing to sacrifice and Haas was picked off second.

Thompson and Paret in Draw

Benny to Meet Jordan for Title In Las Vegas

New York —(U)—Cuba's Benny "Kid" Paret and Argentina's Federico Thompson fought to a draw in 12 thrilling rounds Friday night but the fiery Cuban apparently took the prize that counted — a title fight with welterweight champion Don Jordan at Las Vegas, Nev., May 27.

This, naturally, made the 23-year-old Paret happy, and Thompson furious.

The 32-year-old Argentine champion says he will protest to the New York Athletic commission on Monday if he is passed up on the first crack at the title shot.

It may not do him much good since Las Vegas is in National Boxing association territory and NBA officials approved the Paret-Jordan fight, the winner to meet Thompson within 90 days.

"I have more of a right to the title fight than Paret," said Thompson today. "I knocked out Jordan in the fourth round of a non-title fight at Buenos Aires last Dec. 12 and Paret hasn't fought him. Paret didn't beat me. It was a draw but I think I won. Either I should get the title fight or a return fight with Paret. I'll knock him out the next time."

After the 12 rounds of the Paret-Thompson fight the three officials came up with as many verdicts. Referee Al Berl had Paret in front, 6-5-1. Judge Artie Aldala had them even in rounds, 6-6, but Thompson the winner on points, 8-7. Judge Leo Birnbaum had them exactly even, giving each six rounds and six points. The AP card had Paret in front, 7-5. A ring-side poll gave Paret an 8-6-2 edge. It was that close.

AFL to Flood Chicago, New York With TV Tilts

New York — New York television viewers will have more chances to see the Dallas Texans than their own Giants during the 1960 pro football season.

That was indicated Friday by Jay Michaels, who is helping sportscaster Harry Wismer set up a TV program for the budding American Football league.

Michaels is an executive of the Music corporation of America, a talent agency.

New York, where the Titans plan to play their home games on Friday nights, will get about 30 AFL games on TV. All the Titans' road games will be televised in this area, along with a Saturday night "game of the week" and a Sunday game any time the Titans aren't playing.

Playboys Win 7th Grade Cage Meet

Scorpions, Foxes Also Take ARD Championships

The Playboys, the Scorpions and the Foxes are the respective champions in the Appleton Recreation department's seventh, sixth and fifth grade boys basketball tournaments.

The Playboys defeated the Bucks, 45-33, in the finals. Dan Piper and Tom Rankin shared scoring honors for the victors with 16 points apiece. Tom Jooss hit 10 and Leroy Kiepen and Bruce Gunderson scored for the losers, who trailed, 18-14, at the half.

The Playboys had rolled over the Wildcats, 86-15, in the semi-finals. Jim Hayes wired 18 and Piper 17 for the victors. Krabbe had six for the Wildcats. The Bucks downed the Trotters, 39-26, with Bob Ness coining 18 for the victors. Rechner had 11 for the Trotters. Earlier, the Playboys had routed the Warriors, 61-17.

The Scorpions dumped the Eagles, 29-18, in the Sixth Grade finals. The Scorpions' Dick Kirk tallied 14 points while John Rankin tossed in seven to lead the Eagles.

In the semi-finals the Scorpions blasted the Junior Terrors, 23-9. Ehlike and Kirk paced the winners with nine points. The Eagles had tripped the Aces, 19-12. D. Hayes of the Eagles scored six. The Scorpions had advanced earlier with a 35-6 triumph over the Buccaneers. Kirk's ten points was the high total.

The Foxes' championship victory was by 11-8 over the Whiz Kids. Wayne Lutz of the Foxes tallied four points. In the semi-finals, the Foxes had downed the Panthers, 29-15, as Garry Lutz and North totaled ten for the Foxes. Lutz tallied 14 points, earlier in the tournament.

State College League Quintets Had 48-34 Non-League Record

Oshkosh — Wisconsin State College conference basketball teams had only a 48-34 record in non-league competition this season as compared with a 53-34 mark in 1958-59, official statistics showed Thursday.

The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee posted the best record of 9-2 outside the conference. Whitewater was next with 7-2.

The records also disclosed that eight conference members have managed only seven victories in 26 games in the NAIA tournaments. Oshkosh State was this year's conference representative.

They'll Do It Every Time

Tug-of-War Is Draw

Ban on All Post-Season Sports by Big 10 Probably to be Overridden

By Charles Chamberlain

Chicago — The Big Ten is far from becoming an athletic derelict despite its most trying times in its influential 65-year history.

The current tug-of-war between the general conservatism of faculty control, blood-hounding over - emphasis, and the aggressiveness of some athletic departments, which insist there is no scent to follow, has at best been resolved in a draw for the present.

Ohio State's winning of the NCAA basketball championship could not have come at a more opportune time. It came when the conference was trying to congeal its thoughts on a complete ban of post-season sports.

When the Big Ten recently killed resumption of a Rose bowl football contract, athletic directors rebelliously voted to end post-season competition in all sports.

On the surface, their argument was one of consistency in thinking: That there was discrimination against football, a sport that had to carry the entire financial load of the athletic program.

But basically, they wanted to jolt the governing faculty groups into a reappraisal of post-season football.

The post-season ban now is being presented before each Big Ten school for institutional instruction to its faculty representatives on how to vote at the May meetings in East Lansing, Mich.

Already the presidents of Ohio State, Illinois, and Minnesota have urged that such a ban not be considered. These three schools, plus Northwestern and Wisconsin, recently voted to defeat a contractual agreement on the Rose bowl. Thus, their stand on a complete post-season ban is significant and gives rise to the feel that it will be overridden.

But, at the same time, has there been a reappraisal of post-season football fundamentally desired by the athletic directors? It appears somewhat unlikely.

Gamble Paid Off

Athletic directors, generally, feel their proposal of a post-season ban was a gamble that paid off to the extent that it might result in a less critical approach to the football question in the future. The eventuality of another Rose Bowl contract remains far from dead.

There is a loophole in the bylaws that permits a school to go to the New Year's day classic on an individual basis if invited.

This will bring another instructional faculty vote in May. Since at least one school, Indiana, favored the Rose bowl on a contractual level but was against it on an individual basis, it would seem that the issue is doomed, with the only schools for it being Iowa, Purdue, Michigan and Michigan State.

At the present, this must be the nub of the gamble on reappraisal on post-season activity. It is not expected to carry although only a 5-5 deadlock could keep the clause in effect.

Reformatory Produces Trained, Certified Baseball Umpires

Bordentown, N. Y. — Bordentown Reformatory for Men is producing trained, certified baseball umpires.

The umpires are being trained by William J. Medve, director of athletics and recreation.

Two weeks ago the National Baseball congress, Wichita, Kan., issued the program a charter in its 1960 National Association of Umpires.

Medve holds two classes a week, and the club members officiate at institution contests and games with semipro teams and service teams.

All games are "home" games, of course.

Giel Thinks He Can Prove He Belongs in Major Leagues

Fort Myers, Fla. — Paul worked hard during the winter, the former all-American football player at Minnesota change-up," he said, adding: "I figured it was up to my baseball instead, thinks this self to prove things. I had to make the year he proves he made the right decision. Paul has appeared in seven innings for the Pirates so far Giel said Friday. "It's just a case now of proving it to other people. You know, prove it to those people who can keep me in the big leagues or leave me at Salt Lake City."

Giel signed as a bonus baby with the old New York Giants in 1954. He was pretty much of a flop with the Giants and was sold to Pittsburgh last summer. In eight innings for the Pirates, Giel posted a 13.5 earned run average.

Now he's on the roster of the Bue minor league affiliate at Salt Lake. But he's determined to make the grade. "I homered among 14 hits off three Indian pitchers. Starter Jack Sanford worked six innings for the Giants, giving up three hits and the run.

Musial Homers

Stan Musial hit his second spring homer, and Dick Gray also connected, as the Cards bombed Cincinnati.

The Phillies broke a 6-game losing streak with a 6-run outburst in the thirteenth against Detroit. Philadelphia got six good innings from starting lefty Curt Simmons and home runs from Joe Koppe, rookie Jim Woods and pitcher Art Mahaffey.

Milt Pappas and knuckleball ace Hoyt Wilhelm coauthored a 1-hit performance for Baltimore to snap the Orioles' 8-game losing streak. Wally Moon's third-inning single off Pappas, following two bases on balls, was the Dodgers' only hit and accounted for their run.

$300 Bat Will Be Tried by Washington

Los Angeles — A $300 baseball bat will turn up at the Washington Senators' camp at Orlando, Fla., next month.

It's made of canvas and clear plastic. It cannot be broken.

This bat and others like it will be used in practice by the Senators and the Portland, Ore., club of the Pacific Coast league.

The designer, Ray Tanguay, claims a player can correct and improve his hitting with the bats.

Canvas, glued with resin and compressed under pressure, forms the handle.

The plastic portion, which Tanguay calls the "window," forms what players call the "fat of the bat."

Inside the plastic is a half-inch rod. It gives the batter the impression he is hitting a ball with a half-inch shaft instead of a full bat. This, it is hoped, will sharpen reflexes, sight and coordination.

Lukas Coach at LaCrosse Logan

La Crosse — Wayne Lukas, who helped coach the Wisconsin freshman basketball team last season, has been named basketball coach at La Crosse Logan High school.

Lukas, 25, will succeed Rob Martin who resigned but will continue to teach at Logan. Lukas is a graduate student at Wisconsin. He formally coached basketball at Waukesha and Blair high schools.

Answer to 'You Call It'

(C) — Cepeda should be allowed to take third and McCovey second. The ball, after hitting Mays in the strike zone, is dead. The run scores and all other runners are entitled to advance one base without liability to be put out.

14-Day Gun Season On Deer Is Proposed

CC Okays Submitting Plan to Sportsmen At County Hearings

Madison — A 14-day gun season on deer — with an early opening in all or part of 16 northern counties — has been proposed for Wisconsin hunters this fall.

The Conservation commission Friday okayed submitting the planned Nov. 12-25 hunt to sportsmen at county hearings May 2. Hunting statewide would begin a week later.

Other changes proposed would cut the northern pike limit in musky waters and tighten lake trout bag limits.

Cubs Hope to Erase Taylor's Sideway Step

Mesa, Ariz. — They are teaching catcher Sammy Taylor of the Chicago Cubs the one-step, and it's not dancing.

"Sammy got into the habit of taking a little sideway step with the left foot when he was going to throw," said Coach Elvin Tappe in explaining the base stealing off Taylor last year.

"With that sideway step, he then had to take another step with the right foot before he could cut loose. That little extra time often was enough to allow the runner to beat the throw.

"We've noticed some other things about his defensive technique, and we are trying to overhaul it. He's improving rapidly."

Ziske Tied for 'Columbus' Lead

Columbus, Ga. — Joyce Ziske has been playing good golf this year and the $8,000 Columbus Women's open could be her springboard to the winner's circle.

The 25-year-old Milwaukee miss and Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., were tied for first place going into today's third round of the 72-hole tournament. Each had a 36-hole total of 149 and a 1-stroke edge over Mary Lena Faulk.

Putting was a strong feature of Miss Ziske's opening round, when she finished in a 3-way tie for the lead. But she had her troubles on the greens Friday. She three putted one green and missed several putts of six feet or less for pars or birdies.

Dan Murtaugh Believes Freese Will Be Big Hit With White Sox

Sarasota, Fla. — Danny Murtaugh, Pittsburgh manager, thinks infielder Gene Freese, will make a big hit as a Chicago White Sox.

"They may talk about Freese's fielding, but let's forget that for a minute," Murtaugh said. "He will hit and he will run. He could hit 20 homers or more.

"When you're playing on a second division team like Freese did with Philadelphia, a mistake can cost you a game. But with a good team like the White Sox it's a different thing. You miss a beat and somebody picks you up."

Upland game regulations probably will be unchanged unless spring counts show an upswing in pheasant, quail, partridge and grouse numbers.

Conservation department officials describe last fall's hunt, with its near - record kill of 105,596 as "generally very successful." It said none of the state's deer herds were over - harvested.

Either sex shooting in parts of Douglas, Bayfield, Sawyer, Price, Iron and Ashland counties has been proposed this year to lure hunters into the rugged north country during opening week. Southern fringes of the area were well hunted last fall, elsewhere in the north pressure was disappointing.

Spike Buck Shooting

Where either sex hunting is not allowed in the northern 16 counties during opening week, spike buck and party permit shooting would be in effect.

The permit system, which accounted for 47,696 of last fall's kill, allows a party of four hunters to take an extra whitetail of either sex.

During the Nov. 19-25 period — which ends the day after Thanksgiving — buck and party permit hunting would be permitted in most of the northern half of the state. Bucks would be legal in most of the south.

A special 2-day either sex season would be held in 10 Mississippi river counties, beginning Nov. 19.

Department Game Manager Robert Smith said eastern and southern counties in the southern zone would be considered for more liberal seasons if sportsmen appear to want them.

The department is aiming for a harvest of at least 100,000, with a heavy kill in the far north where overbrowsing has been reported.

No changes were proposed for field registration of the deer kill, planned for the eighth year in a row.

Height Opposes Speed In Shrine Cage Tilt

Rough Fish Sold To Mink Ranchers

Furbearer Feed Demands Offer Good Market for Detrimental Fish

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The feed demands of mink ranchers have provided a new and steadily enlarging market for the huge hauls of rough and detrimental fish harvested by the state conservation department in Wisconsin lakes and streams. Last year more than 2,000,000 pounds out of about 9,000,000 pounds yielded in state and contract rough fishing operations were sold to fur farmers for processing into animal feeds, the state fisheries division disclosed in its annual report.

Colorado May Name Bighorn State Symbol

Famed Target of Big Game Gunners Found in Region

Denver, Colo. — Colorado has a state flower, the columbine; a state bird, the shy little lark bunting; a state tree, the magnificent blue spruce. But it so far has had no state animal. Now the Colorado game and fish commission has moved to rectify this by recommending that the incoming Colorado Legislature designate as the state's animal symbol the Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, one of the most magnificent of large mammals.

Of course the bighorn is not peculiar to Colorado. It is, in fact, only a local variation of a wide-ranging species exemplified by the ovis poli of central Asia, first described to Europeans from Marco Polo.

Migrated From Asia? The American bighorns appear to be closely related to wild sheep found in eastern Asia, near Alaska. Since their migration to America if they did—these sheep have evolved into several varieties, of which some now seem nearly extinct if not wholly so.

The Rocky Mountain bighorn frequents the highest and most difficult of mountains as its name implies, and since Colorado has more really high mountains than all the rest of the United States together, it was the center of the aboriginal range.

During the early rush of people and game hunters to the Rockies it was almost wiped out, and only the sternest measures of prohibited hunting and conservation preserved it. For years Colorado had a completely closed season on the bighorn.

Protected in Park The Colorado game and fish commission went so far as to trap and release bands of bighorn in new territory as seed flocks.

Now there is a very limited open season in some parts of Colorado on the males only. The commission estimates that there are 5,000 to 6,000 of the sheep now in the wild Colorado highlands, and their numbers are certainly not decreasing in spite of some infection problems that have arisen.

The only band that can be said to be anywhere near "tame" is one that lives in the Rocky Mountain National Park around Longs Peak. There, of course, it continues to be completely protected and has been seen by many thousands of tourists and other visitors.

Man, they say, is smarter than fish and this must be so for, up to now at least, nobody has had to worry about stocking humans. But when I think about the spring walleye run on the Wolf river I wonder just who has who on the end of a line.

Actually the fishing population of this section of the state (myself included) dance like so many puppets on a string with the walleyes calling the tune.

In the first place, the pike head up river in their own good time. Nothing that man can do will either hurry them up or slow them down. Since man can't be sure when the run will start it's obvious he has to spend a good deal of time on the river waiting for the pike to come to him.

And so man waits . . . and waits . . . and waits. Families and fishing parties stay up in shifts all night waiting for the pike. The walleyes are in complete command. Until they decide to hit, all a man can do is sit and dunk a minnow. He's at the complete mercy of the fish.

Then the rumors start. "They're hitting at the Red Banks . . . or Northport . . . or Fremont." Like an obedient servant, man gathers his gear and follows the rumors of his choice.

He sits, hunkered like an Arab, in a boat. An afternoon lengthens into evening and then into night. He fights the creeping cold and, as the flames from his lantern flicker on his face, he wonders, perhaps, why he is there. Unless he's willing to leave empty-handed, the pike will tell him when he can go.

"They went up in the shallow water," one will tell you "so you better fish deep because they'll be coming back in the current." Another will tell you they went up in the deep water and will be following the shallows coming down.

Fish the edge of the current . . . fish the current . . . use a cane pole . . . use a spinning rig. I wonder if a walleye can laugh.

And so man sits and waits and fishes. Some claim they have it all figured out. Maybe they have. But I still think the fish are in control. You spend a lot of time on the river doing all of the things you think necessary to catch fish. But only when the walleye is ready will he let you have some fun. He'll end it just as quickly as it starts and there is nothing you can do about it.

It's been ever thus.

Warden Urges Attendance at Spring Meeting

Best Place for Public to Air Views on Hunting

BY CHUCK WRANOSKY

Ottawa County Game Warden

Each year we wardens hear complaints from the public about hunting and fishing seasons, bag limits, etc.

This is one way to air your views. But the best way is to voice your opinion at the county conservation congress meeting this spring.

This year's meeting will be May 2 at the Ottawa County courthouse. This is the place to recommend changes and make your wishes known to the officials in Madison. If you are not satisfied with the hunting and fishing situation here and elsewhere in the state, attend the meeting and put your ideas on official record.

Now, let me turn to another point. If you sell bait, you must have a bait dealer's license. We give this information out many times each week at this time of the year. This law has been in effect for several years and the warning days are over.

When the law was first passed, every effort was made to contact each establishment selling bait, explain the law, and furnish an application for a license. This increased the sale of these licenses a great deal, but there are still those who are selling bait without such a license and a session before the judge may be forthcoming.

Here are a few details of the law. "Bait" means any species of frog, crayfish or minnow used for fishing purposes.

Two Categories No person shall engage in the business of dealing in bait without first obtaining a license. The only exception is that resident children under sixteen years of age may sell up to $500 worth of bait annually without such a license.

Bait dealers are divided into two categories as follows: Two dealer class A means any person who buys for resale, barters, give or sells bait to the amount of $2,000.00 or more each year. This license is $25. Bait dealer class B means any person who buys or gives for resale, barters or sells bait to the amount of less than $2,000.00 each year. This license is $5.00.

In addition to having a license, each bait dealer must keep a correct and complete book record of all transactions in the production, buying and selling of bait carried on by him, except retail sales to consumers need not be recorded.

Judges will be Ralph Anderson, Neenah, and Fred DeGuerre, Neenah. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded to the first four places in the gun dog, derby and puppy stake.

E. A. Hutchinson, Clintonville, is the field trial chairman. John Rassmussen, Eau Claire, is the club president; Dick Westkaemper, La Crosse, secretary-treasurer; Rand Constall, Westby, field trial secretary, and directors are John Dunlavy, Bear Creek; Gene Fowler, Stevens Point, and Hutchinson.

Minneapolis — Rabbits and ruffed grouse are invading the radio broadcasting industry to reveal their habits. A University of Minnesota scientist has been authorized by the Federal Communications commission to equip six male ruffed grouse with tiny radio transmitters so their movements can be charted for a 30-day period. Dr. William H. Marshall, professor of economic zoology, hopes to release his ruffed grouse by April 20 in the National Science Foundation financed project.

The birds will broadcast on transistor radios operated by batteries and weighing one ounce each. Two receivers, manned by biologists, will receive signals day and night, every hour on the hour.

Dr. Dwain Warner, another biologist at the university, said the rabbits are being trained to wear plastic collars containing radio sets.

IF YOU WANT TO BE A REAL OFFSHOREMAN, THEN YOU SHOULD KNOW HOW MANY KNOTS you are traveling on the water . . . not how many miles per hour. Here, then, is some information which will come in handy. There are 6,076.10 feet in an international nautical mile; there are 3,280.84 feet in a U. S. statute mile. Therefore, to convert miles per hour into knots, multiply the miles per hour by 0.868976. If you know how many knots you are traveling multiply that by 1.15077 and you'll get miles per hour. For instance, if your speed is 20 miles per hour, you are traveling at the nautical rate of about 26 knots. # Floating Slip Ends Water Level Problem

BY JOHN BOHANNAN

Boatmen bothered by rising and falling water level in tidal areas as well as along some inland lakes and rivers find a floating slip convenient, provided the location is well sheltered and the tide not too great.

Design details are up to you or your local expert, but here's the general idea. The slip is formed by two floating docks, slightly longer than the boat, and buoyed up by transverse 55-gallon steel drums.

Floats are tied together on the shoreward side by a one-by-eight fir stringer of proper length to accommodate the boat's beam. The seaward side is tied across by an overhead beam made of a pair of two-by-fours spiked together and mounted on dock-end frames.

Steel Ramps Pipe or steel rod-hinged ramps, with cleats for better footing, connect the floats to the shore bulkhead where another set of loosely-fitted pipe hinges hangs from fittings bolted through the bulkhead to steel rods, turnbuckle-tightened and attached to logs, steel plates, or concrete and then covered with earth.

Danger from the turning moment of strong winds is diminished by small steel piles, driven on each side of the slip well to seaward. A steel bearing strap should be provided on the side of the dock to take any contact wear, and a steel strap bridle, with a small amount of clearance and long enough to allow for any expected horizontal movement, passes outside each pile and is bolted to the dock stringer.

Select grade one-by-eight fir is used to frame each dock, using side and center stringers and tie beams at the ends and underneath, between the oil drums and across the center span. Use heavy galvanized nails, augmented by angle irons bolted to the inside corners.

Before assembling, circular notches should be cut in the center stringer to accept the drums, using a power-driven hand jig saw, coping saw or a keyhole saw.

Bearing strips for the ends of the drums are nailed to the inside of the outer stringers, and the drums held in place with heavy galvanized wire lashing.

Marine Paint Give the frames at least two coats of good quality marine paint.

Use one-by-six rough sawn oak for the transverse deck planks and brush on a coat of linseed oil.

For an 18-foot slip, use two 55-gallon drums on the seaward end of each dock and three on the shoreward end, the extra drum taking care of the ramp weight. For a longer slip you will need more drums and you can figure that each drum will support about 350 pounds.

Drums can be painted, or you can have a roofer give them a coat of hot tar.

Tie posts, hand rails for the ramps and docks, and other fittings can be added to suit your requirements.

Best mooring line arrangement for this slip will be port and starboard bow and stern lines and one after bow spring line.

The first of several fishing contests developed around the spring walleye run on the Wolf river begins Monday with over $1,500 in prizes at stake.

The "Let's Go Fishing at New London" contest will continue through April 30, according to George Kubisiak, New London, in charge of the event.

Prizes will be awarded for the largest fish taken each day and week. The major award for the biggest walleye taken is a 51-horsepower outboard motor. The fish must be registered at any one of various business places in New London.

Over 500 walleyes weighing five pounds or more were taken during last year's contest, Kubisiak said. The major award walleye last year measured just short of 29 inches.

The Golden Years

Make Plans in Year Before Retirement

BY THOMAS COLLINS

"I have made no particular plans for retirement. I have not thought it necessary since I will draw social security and a pension for a total of $325 a month."

"However, I have now passed my 64th birthday and, with one year before retirement, I would like to get my house in order. Can you give me a program for these last 12 months?"

I can give you a general "last year" plan. Apply it to your personal circumstances where it fits and you should retire in good shape.

Read Insurance Policies

1. Read the big print and the small print in each life and health insurance policy you have. Unless you are a remarkable citizen, you have never done this. Is your life insurance, which was intended to take care of your dependents, going to be needed for that purpose now? Do the premiums on your life insurance stop at age 65? Are there provisions in these policies to convert them to uses other than death benefits and to terminate the premiums?

Are your health insurance policies with the company going to continue after 65? For how much premium? If they don't continue, can you buy private health insurance for less money now than after 65? Does the health premium cover your wife also?

2. Make a will for yourself and your wife.

Be Healthy

3. Shoot the works on health examinations in these last 12 months and correct any health problem you have. You probably have health coverage with your company which would minimize the medical bills now. If the examinations reveal something wrong, you will go to the hospital with much stronger moral support and attention as an employee of the company than as an old parent on a pension. Most important, you are about to set off on an adventure into the golden years. There's no sense in setting off with lumbago.

4. Give your wife an education in money. Make sure she understands thoroughly what pension and social security benefits she will have for her lifetime if you die first. Be sure she understands where and why to invest what money you have. If you own a house, tell her your views on whether to keep it or sell it. If she is to sell it, make sure she knows how and for how much.

5. Decide now where you will spend your retirement. Then spend every hour you can during these next 12 months toward feathering that nest. As a man who has worked for a lifetime it will be almost impossible for you really to like any retirement home — including the one where you now live — unless you first get on intimate terms with what the daytime activities of that home are going to be. Most good employees with long company service can arrange a large amount of time off during their last year. Arrange it with pay if you can. Allow your salary to be docked if you can't.

All these things will retire from your life when you retire from your job. What are you going to do about this? If you do nothing you will go into retirement with all your values based on them.

ance stop at age 65? Are there provisions in these policies to convert them to uses other than death benefits and to terminate the premiums?

Are your health insurance policies with the company going to continue after 65? For how much premium? If they don't continue, can you buy private health insurance for less money now than after 65? Does the health premium cover your wife also?

2. Make a will for yourself and your wife.

Be Healthy

3. Shoot the works on health examinations in these last 12 months and correct any health problem you have. You probably have health coverage with your company which would minimize the medical bills now. If the examinations reveal something wrong, you will go to the hospital with much stronger moral support and attention as an employee of the company than as an old parent on a pension. Most important, you are about to set off on an adventure into the golden years. There's no sense in setting off with lumbago.

Tipping Question Is How, Not How Much

BY SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Piercing between the lines of letters, we detect that what concerns people about tipping is not how much to tip, but how, with dignity and good taste.

Forking over a sum based on your estimate of how much more than his salary an employee's services were worth to you, you stand about one chance in four of really appearing appreciative.

The other three chances can make you look like a piker, a showoff or just a bumbler.

Always Have Change

What, for example, do you do if a cab driver hands you three singles and a nickel out of $5 for a $1.95 charge: tip the five cents (not enough), a dollar (too much) or fumble around in your pocket for the right change which you already know you don't have?

The answer is always to have change; break large bills into small ones and small ones into silver at all convenient opportunities. These will usually be at hotel cashiers or in restaurants when paying your bill.

Some travelers hold that an employee who hasn't sense enough to be prepared with the right change either doesn't deserve or doesn't expect a tip. But life isn't always that simple.

Here are some other ideas on how and when to tip as unostentatiously as possible, regardless of the sum you choose:

Fullman Porter — Only on stepping off the train at the end of your trip; he'll be waiting expectantly for you at the foot of the steps. If your trip is for more than one night and there is a change of shifts, the porter should make his departure from duty known to you in a pointed manner.

Station Porter: railroad, dock or airport — When he has dropped your bags in the rack or on the baggage counter and stands awaiting your indulgence. In railroad stations, there is a fixed charge per bag, usually 25 cents, above which a tip is expected.

Bellhop — After conducting you to your room, he will busy himself opening or closing windows, turning on or off air conditioning or heat, checking towels and opening baggage racks. Finally he will turn to you and hand you your key, at which precise moment you ought to place his tip in his hand.

Waiter captain — This is a species found only in night clubs and classy continental restaurants. He's the one in neat dinner jacket or tails, as distinct from the waiter in gaudy uniform, who takes your order and is supposed to serve or see it served properly. While the waiter's tip is left on the tray as usual, the captain's should be handed to him discreetly, as in a handshake, on your way out. Don't worry, he'll be near your table as you leave.

Headwaiter — The sergeant-at-arms at the door of night clubs and fancy restaurants should be taken care of only if good tables are scarce or nonexistent, and then only in advance, whereupon they will materialize miraculously.

Bartender — In case you're not a barfly by experience, always pay for your drinks as served; unless a check is left in front of you, in which event they will be collected for as you leave (it's bad manners to pick up your change after each drink as if you're afraid someone will steal it.) On departing take all but what you wish to leave for the bartender.

Cocktail waitress — Though you may be ordering dinner, she may collect for drinks on the spot. Again the ubiquitous tray will be in evidence.

Cigarette girl — Since you were too lazy to go out and get your own or too thoughtless to bring them with you, the penalty tray will be presented with your change, usually with carefully selected denominations among the coins.

Shipboard stewards; beachboys, children's counselor, waiter, busboy, maître d' and maid, etc. at resorts — Always, but always, in envelopes prepared the night before and awarded on the occasion of your departure.

Tour guide — Also as you bid him farewell at the end of your tour, whether it be a day or a month.

Airline personnel — Never, but never. Hasn't it cost you enough so far?

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel questions.

Address them care of the Appleton Post-Crescent. All will be answered as soon as possible but those containing stamped self-addressed envelopes will be given preference.

Intermission at the Operetta

BY JEAN HAMMOND

The sound of laughter changes to applause and then to the buzz of human voices. The transformation takes place without a perceptible break. It's intermission at the opera and the crowd spilling into the Appleton High School foyer adds the clattering of coke bottles and the rasping of cigarette lighters to the click of high heels and shuffling feet.

"I'm glad we came, Mary," a matronly woman with bright blue eyes and a flawless complexion tells her companion. "This is just what Carl needs. He works much too hard."

"I hear he's taken on another fund drive," her friend remarks, rummaging through her purse.

"Yes, I sometimes wonder why he bothers. All that time and effort and who really cares?"

"Now you don't mean that, Florence," the friend with the flowered handkerchief.

"I can't imagine a society that doesn't know the word 'love'," a tall young woman muses to her husband. "Why, here it's people who don't love who are considered sick!"

"When he wrote this story," a middle-aged man with a crew cut and bow tie tells his companion, "Jules Verne must have been considered friend says. "There's a certain warmth in a town like Appleton that doesn't exist in a big city. It isn't only that you know more people. It's that, well, everyone seems to care more about the others."

"That's it exactly," the new-comer agrees. "Like a friend of mine on the north side. She took care of a sick neighbor all last week. Now you know that just wouldn't happen in a lot of other places."

"The Sun Comes Up"

"The sun comes up, the sun goes down, and the silly old earth goes round and round," a man carrying a gray hat with a tiny sprig of red feather on the side repeats a few lines of the operetta to his wife. "Makes me of the things we do look pretty foolish, doesn't it?"

"And did you ever think about the possibility of an entire universe existing in a speck of dust on a table top?"

After all, size is relative. Our universe could be only a speck of dust on some other gigantic table. This world idea is most interesting."

A buzzer sounds and dozens of cigarettes are instantly stamped out on the floor. People make an exodus back to their seats and quietly wait for laughter to once again rise in their throats and sound in their ears.

This is Appleton. It's where we live.

"I agree with that," her

"Sometimes I find myself really missing a big city and all it has to offer. But after enjoying something like this I'm glad I can go home to my own house and neighborhood. There's a good deal more to a town than its entertainment."

Your Problems

Teenager Outgrows Old Friends Who Search Theaters for Boys

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: — I've been friendly with two girls ever since kindergarten. The three of us have always hung together. We are 14 now and getting interested in boys. This is the problem: My girl friends have started something I don't like. When we go to the show Ann Landers on Saturday they seem a lot more interested in meeting strange fellows than watching the movie.

Last time they moved three different times to start up conversations. I moved once but wouldn't go with them after that. They say it's fun to talk to fellows from other high schools. I think it's cheap. We're fighting over this and drifting apart.

We've always been known as the "triplets" and I hate to split up with them. I decided to write to you instead of talking to my mother. She's rather old (36). Thank you.—Emma

DEAR EMMA: When you outgrew your shoes you got rid of them, didn't you? Well the same thing has happened to your girl friends. You need a new pair.

Nice girls don't comb the theater audience in search for boys. It's a dangerous practice and could lead to serious trouble. Tell them you want no part of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A neighbor woman is making such a nuisance of herself that I don't know what to do. Last night my husband and I had a few couples in. At about 9 p.m. the Pest appeared at the door and said her phone was out of order and could she use ours. She was dressed as if she were going to a semi-formal. I said, "Yes," and thought nothing of it.

In a few moments she wandered into the living room, sat down with the guests and entered into the conversation. The Pest stayed right on as if she'd been invited. When it came time to serve refreshments she said "My that smells good," so of course I had to invite her to say.

I feel sorry for the woman because she's a widow, but it's not my responsibility to provide her with social life. I bitterly resent her pushiness. She gossips quite a lot and likes to monopolize the conversation with her juicy bits.

I'm sure she had a very good time and I'm afraid she'll pull this stunt again when she sees cars in our driveway. What can I do?—Infuriated

DEAR INFURIATED: Your only defense against insensitive, aggressive people is to fight fire with fire. If she should pull this stunt again, wait near the phone and after she has finished, take her arm gently and walk with her out the front door.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are planning to have open house for our 40th wedding anniversary. The trouble is we have lived in this town all our lives and we know everybody. Our home is not a large one.

DEAR MRS. POST: Recently I bought an expensive and very different dress. After having received many compliments because of it, a friend of mine asked me where I had bought it. I refused to tell her. I bought the dress because it was different and I certainly didn't want anyone copying it. She was quite surprised at my attitude and told friends that she thought I was very rude and selfish. Because we do have many friends in common, I felt I was justified in not telling her. Was I wrong in handling the situation as I did?

Answer: No you were not. The person who was rude was your friend. It is never considered good manners to copy a friend who you see a great deal of—in fact, you try to avoid it.

Remains Seated
Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening I went to visit a friend in the hospital. While there, his nurse came into the room with a pill that he was supposed to take at that time. I did not rise for her but remained seated at my friend's bedside. He chided me later for not getting up. Was I wrong not to have gotten up?

Answer: As it was entirely a professional situation, you were not wrong in remaining seated. If it has been the first time you had seen his nurse he should have introduced you and then you should have gotten up.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-32, entitled, "Table Linen," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Compare Food Costs Carefully

Since you spend half of your food dollar for high protein items, it's well to make occasional price comparisons. Compare what you get in food value with what you have to pay for a serving, suggests a foods specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Start with milk since this is a big cost item in large families. Everyone needs to have milk, but you have several choices at several price levels. Compare costs in your area of skim, 2 per cent, dry milk or the concentrates.

Dry Milk Less
Usually you'll find dry milk costs the least for a serving and fresh whole milk may be priced higher per serving than other milk. Check these costs once or twice a year to make the most saving.

Other dairy products that are bargains in protein yet low in cost are cottage cheese and cheddar cheese. Cheddar cheese gives you calcium in addition while most of the calcium is lost in the whey when cottage cheese is made.

You can get the same good supply of protein in cream cheese, ice cream, butter and cream but you'll pay more for the food value you get.

You get good protein in meat, poultry, fish and eggs. Dry beans, peas and nuts supply the same nutrients and are inexpensive substitutes for more costly meats.

When you buy meats don't forget that inexpensive chuck gives you as much protein as more expensive roasts. One of the best food values in meat is liver for it's not only high in protein but in iron, vitamin A and the B vitamins.

Editor to Speak on Russian Competition in Paper, Pulp Fields

The threat of Russian competition in the pulp and paper industry will be discussed by Albert W. Wilson, editor of two trade journals, at a meeting of the Valley Industrial Salesmen's association at noon Friday, April 4, at Club Terrace.

He will speak on Russian production, research, planning and export from materials gathered on an extended tour of Russia in 1959. Non-members of the sales association may make reservations by calling the Reichhold Chemical company, Irving Zuelke building.

tone, and iron will enter into your soul.

When he gets a horrible score in a tournament, the expert calls it a "nice little game." Anything worse is a "gentleman's score."

When the expert is trapped into playing with a gentleman, does he later recount to his cronies all of the gentleman's misdeeds? Not at all. He gives credit where credit is due. "He played very well," the expert announces. "Revoked only once."

Respect for Women

The expert is very careful to pay proper respect to players of the female persuasion. If he knows her, the expert will refer to her by name. "Helen Sobel bid one spade," he will relate. Or "Edith Kemp led the eight of hearts."

If the expert doesn't know the female player, he is careful to call her a lady. For example, "A lady won the first trick with the king of diamonds."

I'll never forget the time my wife played in the master individual at a national tournament a couple of years ago. I wasn't playing in the event, and I strolled into the playing room and sat down at her table just in time to hear her bid a hand with an expert from the midwest.

Not So Gallant
My wife opened the bidding with one heart, and her partner bid one notrump. My wife bid two hearts, and her partner bid three no trump. Doubled, and down three. Three hearts was unbeatable.

Nobody said a word, and my wife moved on to her next table. The midwesterner caught my eye and began to explain what had happened. "The lady bid one heart," he said.

I interrupted him indignantly. "That was no lady," I declared. "That was my wife." Ladies' Teams
In our national tournaments we have championship events for women only, and we very sensibly call them women's pairs or women's teams, as the case may be. On the other side of the Atlantic they call such events ladies' pairs or ladies' teams. Very impolite of them.

We're sending a team of women to Turin next month to play for the world championship. They call it the ladies' team championship, but I certainly hope our girls play like women.

They'll have to do their best to win from the English, Belgium and France also field fine women's teams. The Italian men have won three world championships in a row, but their women have a hard time keeping out of last place. Perhaps this is divine justice.

Although the English women won the last European championship, they held months of team matches in England to select the team that will represent England at Turin next month. An interesting hand from one of those matches:

Dealer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of hearts and led out the king of hearts and queen of spades. She stopped for thought when Pickles. East discarded a club on the second round of trumps. South next tried the club fin- enkamp, Vinal Strelow, Allen and declarer ruffed.

South led a diamond to dummy's queen, and East won with the ace.

Takes Wrong Path

East was now at the crossroads, but she took the wrong path. She had worked it out that West had started with a singleton king of clubs, and this knowledge was too much for her. East returned a club for her partner to ruff.

This did nothing for West, since her trump trick was sure in any case. No matter what West returned, South could easily gain the lead and draw the last trump. The rest was just a matter of taking sure tricks.

East should have returned a third round of hearts, forcing South to ruff again. Declarer's best chance now is to lead the ace of clubs, but West would discard a diamond instead of ruffing.

South cannot draw trumps, since she has only one trump in each hand, while West has two trumps. South must lead a club or a diamond, allowing West to ruff. West leads another heart.

Dummy can ruff with the six of spades, but South cannot get to her hand to draw the last trump. West will surely get another trump trick, defeating the contract.

At Other Table
Since the hand was part of a team match, it was played also at another table. There the bidding was quite different, and North became declarer at a contract of three no trump.

East opened a low club, and North counted her tricks. Two clubs, if the finesse lost, one heart and five spades if the suit broke normally. She would need one diamond trick, if all went well.

The danger of taking the club finesse was that West might win and shift to hearts. Then there would be no time to develop a diamond trick.

So declarer shrewdly put up the ace of clubs at the first trick. The king obligingly dropped, and declarer had no further problem.

Our Children

Frustrations Can be Blessings in Disguise

BY ANGELO PATRI

Small boy Donnie, 3, and his mother were in the garden when a cardinal bird flew by and alighted on a flowering shrub. Beautiful, his beauty shone magnificently against the great white bouquet of the shrub. Both mother and son stood still to look at him.

"Get him for me, mother, get him for me," begged the small boy, dancing up and down impatiently as his mother made no motion toward the bird.

"No, Donnie. I couldn't catch him if I tried and I wouldn't if I could. We must not catch birds. We must look at them and listen to them sing. Birds are not for catching, you see. They're just to look at like the flowers."

"I want him," began Donnie, "but his mother walked calmly on and the cardinal flew away about his own business. Donnie kept whimpering but it did him no good. Nobody even bent an ear to his 'I want him.'"

Child Must Learn

Like the child who reaches for the moon and can't see why his mother doesn't pull the shiny balloon down for him, Donnie wanted the beautiful thing he saw. In fact, at his age, he is likely to want anything and everything he sees.

If what he wants is right and good for him, and it can be given him without sacrifice to someone else, well and good. If it costs too much either in money or personal service he should not get it and should be told why and no whining or pleading should benefit him.

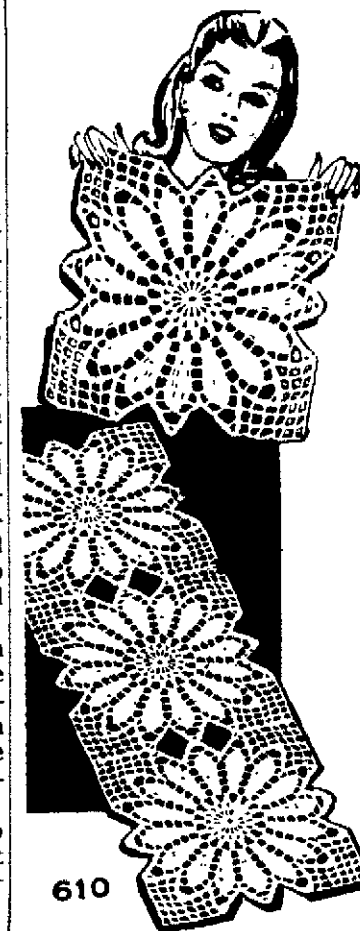

Some mothers have been frightened off this sensible standard by the word "frustration," and its ill effect on children, and so have gone too far in meeting the children's whims and fancies.

Everyone old enough to have a child knows well that there are things one cannot have for one sound reason or another. We put up with privation without damage to mental health and, often as not, with profit to our general character. But somehow, experienced as they are, parents hearts melt at the pleading of a small child, and whatever the cost to themselves will give him the thing he wants although it may be costly to them and put a passing whim for the youngster.

Angelo Patri offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning child training. If you would like to have his leaflet P-11, "Slowness," send 10 cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 89, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Family Diary

We had a letter from Mitzi about it, too. He was a good kid—at least, had the maksmall talk about all the things of one." He shook his head. "Just dropped out of sight."

"Seventeen-year-old boys just don't drop out of sight," she wrote. "Though I've met a lot of new guys, none is half as nice. Don't tell him that, though. He never writes."

I showed the letter to Bruce. "Search me," he said. "Since Mitzi left, I never see him."

"If you never see him, then I'll have to," I said. "I can't write Mitzi until I do."

The next afternoon when I went grocery shopping I planned a dinner that would nicely feed one more, then drove by the Super—Preme filling station where Grady worked across the railroad tracks part-time after he quit school.

Not seeing him about, I asked the stock pleasant-faced man approaching the car what the faded sign "Lodgings" in the window, and there was suspicion in the face of the narrow-lipped woman who responded to my knock and my questions. "His old man's in jail, that's where he is—and the boy's not here."

Letter From Friend Instigates Search

By Jeannette Griffith

In that fractional instant as I stood there I remembered the morning we had all gone to the railroad station to see Mitzi off for New York. I remembered the look on Grady's lean, dark face, the way he had straightened himself as the train disappeared down the track. I could hear him say, "Mitzi's a real woman. A woman needs a man—and I'm going to try."

We had all been touched by his remark; we had believed he meant it, but what had we done to help him on his way? Nothing at all. If anything had happened to Grady . . . if he were in trouble . . .

I didn't feel very proud of myself as I asked the question.

Goes to School
"Grady in trouble? Not on your life! He's got him a job. A real one, works at the plant on the 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. shift so he can go to night school and learn how to be a mechanic." Her face showed signs of relenting. "If you're a friend of his, why don't you wait? He ought to be home any time now."

As she spoke I saw him coming, swinging jauntily along, lunch pail in his hand. The long, slick, duck-tailed haircut and the familiar slouch were gone. Though Grady hadn't yet recognized me, I could see that even on Marrow street with its poverty and refuse cans and unkempt doorways, it was possible for the right kind of boy to become the right kind of man. I would have good news for Mitzi after all.

Highway Department Looking at Small Cars

Study in Progress on Their Number, Impact on Tax Revenues for Roads

Madison — The Wisconsin highway commission will be the highway officials are taking a big look at the growing number of small cars. They want to know how many there are, how much gas they use and what roads they travel the most. If these cars use substantially less gasoline they could cut the amount of tax money available for building and maintaining highways. If more of them take to the highway it may be necessary to engineer roads for more than the conventional autos and trucks.

Check Taxes
A motorist's line of vision from a small car might call for a change in thinking on how curves and hills should fit into highway planning. "We have to start exploring now to find out what these small cars will do to gasoline tax revenue. Data being compiled by the Wisconsin Highway Department."

Winter Stays Despite 7 Days of Spring

The sixth day of spring in the Fox Cities was celebrated with a half inch of blowing snow. The seventh day was greeted with a low of 2 above zero.

No relief is seen for the Fox Cities for the next five days, the weatherman says.

The unseasonal freeze spread from the central Dakotas eastward to the Atlantic coast and as far south as central Delaware and northern Kentucky.

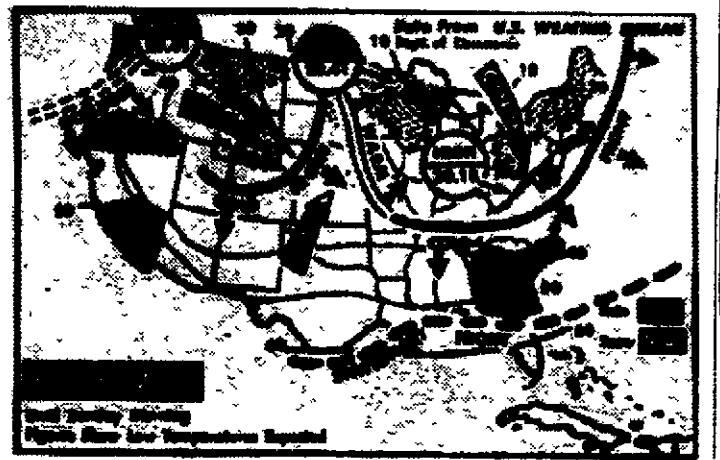

It may not be comforting, but it was 85 in Yuma and 66 in Phoenix, Ariz., today.

Green Bay Youth Killed in Crash

The second auto was driven by Mrs. Laverne Motquin, 34, of 1203 Reber street. She told the police she stopped for a stop sign while headed north on Oneida street and then started ahead. She said that she did not see the Englebert car, which was approaching from the east on Dousman street.

Snow Flurries Are Due Tonight for the New England states, interior New York and western Pennsylvania, with snow in the northern and western lakes area and northern Mississippi valley. Snow, rain or a combination can be expected in the eastern Dakotas, northern Rockies and extreme northwest with rain in northern California, Nevada, southern California and the south Atlantic states. ## Janesville Asks Hike in Bus Fares

Council Also Wants to End Sunday Service

Post-Crescent News Service

Janesville — The city fathers of this southern Wisconsin industrial center have found that their city-owned bus transit system is a white elephant and an increasingly costly one.

Trying to overcome mounting operational deficits, the city council has voted a boost in local bus fares to 20 cents, together with a reduction of service that would keep the vehicles in their barns on Sundays.

The changes in the service program must be approved by the state public service commission before they become effective.

The councilmen braved considerable resistance by local residents in making their decisions. Petitions bearing the names of about 800 demanded the retention of the existing service schedules and the present 15 cent fare. Under the new rates suggested, the city would sell seven ride tokens for $1.25.

The city bus system ran up a deficit of nearly $17,000 last year and a record $27,600 the previous year.

Losses have been steady since the city took over the transit system seven and one half years ago from a private owner who was threatening to abandon it.

The action was taken reluctantly and since that time the city has sought a new private operator without success. Two years ago a city official made a public speech in which he bade interested purchasers to make a bid for the system which was operating at a loss, he admitted, in spite of some degree of subsidy from the city in the form of tax-paid management and other items.

New Engines Will Bring Car Changes

Detroit — The aluminum engines for Detroit's cars of the future apparently will bring with them a number of changes in design and manufacturing methods.

J. H. Dunn, manager of process development at the New Kensington, Pa., laboratories of the Aluminum Company of America, said in Detroit recently that "an aluminum engine should be part of a new, complete package—not just a substitute for a current engine made of cast iron."

He said that an aluminum power plant would allow for potential weight savings in the frame, suspension, brakes, wheels, tires, engine supports and elsewhere—thus, a redesigned car.

And when are such engines going to appear? "As you know," Dunn said, "an engine using many basic components of aluminum has been introduced by Chevrolet in 1960 in the Corvair and we anticipate other aluminum engines will appear in the near future, probably in 1961 models."

Neenah — George Dix has been named most valuable debater on the Neenah High squad this year. He was selected in a secret ballot by the debaters and will receive a trophy.

He has been active in debate for three years and on the varsity squad each year. He also has taken part in two state tournaments. Last summer he attended a 5-week session of the national high school institute at Northwestern university.

He was among the 90 students out of the 500, at the session who studied public speaking and debate. He plans to take his college training at Northwestern and go into law.

Menasha — A pair of Fox Cities entries, Holy Name of Kimberly and Appleton St. Mary, worked their ways into the finals of the 29th annual Diocesan Grade school basketball tournament by recording wins Friday night at the St. Mary gym.

St. Mary defeated Holy Redeemer of Two Rivers 29-27 on a basket by Paul Putzer with one second left to play while Holy Name had an easier time in subduing St. Luke of Two Rivers 38-28.

The championship game is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday with the third place contest between the two Two Rivers squads slated an hour earlier.

Three Deadlocks
The St. Mary - Holy Redeemer game was close all the way. It was deadlocked 9-9, 15-15 and 19-19 at the end of each of the first three periods and no more than two points separated the teams until the Two Rivers five took a 25-21 lead in the fourth period.

The Colts tied the score and then took a 27-25 lead on Jim Garvey's basket with 50 seconds left. Twenty seconds later Holy Redeemer's Bob Konop tied the issue and it remained that way until Putzer hit from outside the free throw circle just before the last horn sounded.

Putzer Hits 15
Putzer scored 15 points. Garvey had eight and Joe Ellenbecker six to account for all

The Kimberly Holy Name-Two Rivers St. Luke tournament game was fairly close at this juncture but you wouldn't know it by looking at these three young spectators, who appear to be getting more enjoyment from their ice cream bars. Kimberly won the game, 38-28, to advance to the diocesan tournament finals.

The athletes do some running outdoors and then return to the gym for calisthenics and other work. The long Neenah High corridors permit runners to get in good workouts at their various distances.

Script Lack May Affect
TV, Movies

Unsettled Writers'
Strike Seen as Big
Threat to Future

Hollywood — Amid the hubbub over the actors' strike against the feature movie studios, it may be overlooked that the writers have been on strike since Jan. 16.

The drought of scripts could well mean more to entertainment seekers, at home and in theaters, than the lack of actors.

The actors' strike, which began March 7, actually shut down only eight feature films. Several independent producers and Universal-International (which has made peace with both the actors and writers) have been able to continue shooting in Hollywood and abroad. The actors didn't strike against television; talks for a new TV contract come up next month.

The Writers Guild of America struck both feature films and TV. As with the Screen Actors guild, the strike has been firm but polite—no picketing, no demonstrations. But the writers claim their action is hurting producers badly.

Inactive Films

"The actors' strike affects the present," said a spokesman. "The writers' strike affects the future."

The guild says that it has put a serious crimp in plans for feature production, pointing to inaction on such films as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "The King Must Die," "Return to Peyton Place," "The Chapman Report," "Gidget Goes Hawaiian," "The Marauders," "God and My Country," "Sanctuary" and many others.

TV Series Affected

The guild says at least 14 TV series will be unable to complete their 1960 season because of no scripts. Among them: "Wagon Train," "The Detective," "77 Sunset Strip," "Laramie," "Hawaiian Eye," "Dennis the Menace," "Adventures in Paradise," "The Donna Reed Show," "The Lawman," "The Alaskans," "Johnny Ringo."

The situation was so acute on the Warner's lot that scripts were reportedly interchanged between shows. For instance, an old "77 Sunset Strip" plot might be switched to "Bourbon Street Beat" by

The Appleton High School Senior Class will present "A Model Princess" at the high school auditorium April 9 and the publicity committee is hard at work letting students and townspeople know about it. changing the character names.

"We haven't been hurt so much on this season's shows," reported Dick Powell of the Four Star Productions (Zane Grey, June Allyson, Rifle-But if the strike continues, we are going to have trouble with the new shows sold for next year. My fear is that the advertisers are going to get fed up with the delay and channel their money to magazines instead of TV."

NBC to Start
New Series
For Women

Dr. Joyce Brothers
To Discuss Problems
In Daytime Program

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

New York — The National Broadcasting Company obviously is convinced that what the American woman needs is a TV series about her everyday problems.

Thus it is underwriting production of some drama-discussions on such subjects as sibling rivalries, husbands who won't talk to their wives, child rearing and why people are late to appointments.

Star of the projected daytime series will be Dr. Joyce Brothers, the young blonde psychologist who first rose to fame and riches as an expert on boxing on the late "64,000 Question" and "64,000 Challenge."

Since 1955, however, she has emerged as a degree-fortified expert in the advice area, with two daily TV shows on NBC's New York station.

Dr. Brothers says her show will consist of dramatizations of problems followed by her little talk in laymen's language, about the problem and what psychologists know about it. And she will have a title new to TV: "psychologist-hostess."

"It will not be entertainment," insists Dr. Brothers. "It will be helpful. And I know it is something that women need. In one year, just from the New York area, I've received 200,000 letters from people with problems—and almost all of them are signed by the writers' names."

Oscarcast Trumpeting
Aggravates Jingo

Too Much Publicity Breeds Fear of Fizzle for Academy Awards Program

BY JINGO
The time is approaching for the "great" Oscarcast and the trumpeting surrounding this annual telecast is fast reaching the proportions of a herd of wild elephants being chased by a stampede of mice.

One of the great dangers in selling is that point when a pitch turns into overselling. Poor Jingo's desk overflowing with "top secret" information about the 32nd awards festivities — all marked for immediate release — is aggravating if mute evidence of classic overselling.

No doubt the awards ceremonies will contain all of the suspense and drama for which it is famous, but with all of the advance hullabaloo Jingo wonders if there isn't a great danger it will fizzle out the same way the much publicized "roasting" of Bob Hope did on the last two Tuesdays.

The first half hour of the Oscarcast on Channel 5 starting at 9:30 p. m. April 4 will get some stiff competition — for the women listeners at least.

Channel 2's June Allyson show will feature the dramatic television debut of Rossano Brazzi, the Italian heart throb who made cinema's Nurse Forbush "as corny as Kansas" in "South Pacific."

"The Cradle Song," a Lawrence production of a season ago, will get a repeat performance on television on NBC's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" on April 10. Helen Hayes, the first lady of the American theater, and Sirhan McKenna, Ireland's first theatrical lady, will repeat their performances, along with Judith Anderson, recently proclaimed a dame by Queen Elizabeth for her representation of the finest on the English stage.

Sunday, April 10, will become a milestone in television production. The NBC network will air all 24 hours of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" in English and color, the longest single opera colorcast in history. Cesare Siepi sings the restless Don.

Waukesha this weekend has become a Mecca for serious community theater people, including a troupe of actors from Neenah High school. The University of Wisconsin Idea Theater annual workshop is being produced for the 15th time. Broadway's Oliver Rea, Stratford, Canada's Jean Rosenthal and the Idea Theater's Tom Patterson will conduct workshop sessions for community theaters and the Waukesha Civic theater will produce "All My Sons."

Remember when royal happenings in England were big cinema box office? That time has gone forever. Television has short-stopped the films. The Princess Margaret - Antony Armstrong-Jones wedding is a case in point. You will be there! Westminster abbey will be a studio for live television May 6 and with that cast it should be quite a show.

Susskind to Quit
TV Adaptations
Of Old Movies

New York — David Susskind, whose production company has turned out about 40 special shows for the three major networks this season, will not attempt any more television adaptations of old motion picture hits.

"No matter how good the show, no matter how hard you work, you can only wind up the loser," says Susskind. "The public endows its favorite old movies with a special kind of nostalgia."

His plans for next year, however, include a lot of special, hour-long shows. In the drafting stage is a series of eight satirical revues starring Mike Nichols and Elaine May.

There also is a series adapted from classics of the family bookshelf — "The Sea Wolf," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Vanity Fair," "Pickwick Papers" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" among them.

He also plans a series called "The Witness," in which notorious evil-doers of history stand trial. The pilot show concerns gambler Arnold Rothstein. There also is a series called "The Time of My

Primary School Clay Experiment Capsules Goals of Art Program

BY JACK HOLZHUETER

Hand the average adult a lump of red clay and he'll probably tell you it's worthless.

But hand the average 7-year-old the same lump and he will tell you it's good for a lot of things, especially "experimenting."

That's what happened at Huntley school recently. One of the two art resource specialists for the public elementary schools visited a room of primary students for an hour of work with clay.

"What should we do with this?" she asked.

Immediately a lad responded, "Let's experiment."

First she explained to the children several properties of the clay. She pointed to a flower pot on the window ledge, saying it once looked Probably no program in the Appleton public school system is as misunderstood as that pursued by the art department. In a series of three articles, the Post-Crescent will explore the goals of the program, describing the results in terms of actual classroom situations. The first article describes grade school art, the second art in junior high school, the third senior high school art.

Just like the large lump on the table until it was shaped into a pot, then fired (baked) at about 1,900 degrees until it was hard.

Then she promised the children they could fire their works after they were finished. The promise was necessary, the specialist explained later, because the children are very skeptical that the flower pot actually was once a lump of clay.

The students began their "experiment." Enthusiasm began exploding quietly all over the room. I'm going to make a dinosaur," one boy announced. Others began to form with their hands tables, trees, baby bottles, animals of all descriptions and the inevitable nests filled with eggs.

Nests and Eggs

"UNESCO has found," the resource teacher stated privately, "that children of this age, the world over make nests filled with eggs when they begin to explore clay. Some call them bowls with fruit, but they look like nests with eggs," she said.

And four nests did appear. One was laden with large eggs; another with small eggs; a third was just half filled; the fourth bore a single egg.

The lad who attempted the dinosaur was somewhat frustrated, the teacher said, because his ability to model clay did not equal his ability to imagine a dinosaur. But with a friendly word, he was convinced his product was successful and looked forward to see what would happen to it when it was baked.

Experiment Worth It

What purpose did this hour of experimentation with clay serve? Was it worth it?

Yes, reply classroom teachers and art specialists unanimously. Besides the obvious value of letting the child express himself through an experiment, the clay project also helped the children grow in seven different ways, six of them secondary to the primary art education purpose of helping students to grow aesthetically. The seven goals are:

Primarily aesthetic growth, secondarily technical growth, emotional growth, spiritual growth, social growth, intellectual growth and physical growth. These goals are pursued throughout the 12 years of art instruction in Appleton schools. "They are aimed at developing an inventive attitude and helping the child grow aesthetically," say the art teachers, "and this is the goal of the whole school system."

First, aesthetic growth. "By observation and by discussion the child becomes aware of what is beautiful, whether it is in the world about him, in his own efforts, or an art gallery," wrote the art specialists last spring. "The actual use of a variety of media will enhance the child's own experience and help make him aware of the aesthetic quality of his own work and more sensitive to the art he views."

Appreciate Work

The clay project did just this. The children were extremely aware of each other's work, and they appreciated it. One lad examined another's work—titled "Donald Duck With Hat"—and called it beautiful. It may not have been beautiful, but it was pleasant and simple. He appreciated his classmate's work from an aesthetic standpoint and had started to develop a glimmer of a standard of his own.

Technical growth: "Just as in all areas of learning, a progressive development should be expected in the skills used in creative expression."

This experience was not the first the children had had with clay. They showed greater ability than at first, the teacher pointed out. In kindergarten, when they first explored clay, they pounded it; at the next stage of development, they squeezed it, then they made things with it. At this final stage, the teacher said, the pupils demonstrate great freedom of expression and are able to absorb a limited knowledge of the techniques of modeling clay.

Emotional growth. "Creative expression requires the child to make a decision and follow it through. He has to work out his own problems with a minimum of assistance. These efforts help him achieve an understanding of himself and his environment. The numbing effects of movies, television, radio and spectator sports can be counteracted by suitable art activities."

Tension Outlet

The art specialist indicated the clay experiment directly augmented emotional growth and served as an outlet for tension. She pointed to other projects hung on the walls of the room. A child's sketch of his father sitting in a car was his representation of what his father did while he was in school, she said. "Now he'll go home and question his father, and he'll begin to understand family organization," she pointed out. "An understanding of oneself and his environment leads to healthy emotional growth."

Spiritual growth. "The acceptance of self is vital to spiritual development. Creative activities can aid in bringing about this step and in providing a sense of spiritual awareness. Integrity and sincerity of expression contribute to normal and ethical growth. This type of art is in direct opposition to the hypocrisy of number painting sets and of coloring books."

Each of the children who dipped his hands into the pile of clay was honest with himself when he created something. There was an attempt to please himself, not his neighbor or his teacher. If this had not been the case, every child would have copied another's work, but there were no copyists.

Social growth. "While engaging in art activities, the child has to get along with other children, share tools and materials, accept the ideas of others and compromise on some of his own ideas."

Vague Shapes

The vague shapes created by the children were not vague at all to them. Said one little girl excitedly: "Look at Jane's baby and baby bottle." The girl had accepted Jane's indistinguishable efforts for what they were to Jane and had learned firsthand the generosity of social behavior.

Intellectual growth. "The child must take an abstract concept, focus it, then develop it so his idea will be communicated. He must plan a course of procedure and follow it through to a satisfactory conclusion."

One boy had to meet the challenge of working with clay despite the fact his right arm was in a sling. How would he get the clay into a workable state? First he pounded with one fist, then flattened it with a book, pounding with an elbow, finally he took off a shoe and whacked it soundly into shape. He'd solved his problem—an intellectual task.

Physical growth: "Art activities aid physical growth by the use of muscles, the development of skills and coordination."

This principle obviously was included in the clay project. Each child gained in manual dexterity.

In-Between Philosophy

The school system's two art specialists—Alvin E. Bennett and Miss Monica Cooney—describe this philosophy as something between the old-fashioned and the "progressive" forms of art education. Under the old-fashioned method, children were told to fill in the lines with crayons. Under the "progressive" method, they were given no direction whatever and had to create from a vacuum.

The new philosophy accepts the child's work for what it is. It does not set up impossible, adult standards for the child to emulate, but encourages each pupil to work at his best. This goal results in the continuous development of a child's artistic sense and ability. But he improves on his own effort—not in comparison to someone else.

Each grade in the elementary program has outlined for it a different set of interrelated goals and art projects, one year flowing into the next. Students work in three general areas: illustration, 3-dimensional and art appreciation.

Three Areas

In illustration, children use crayons, paint, ink, chalk, charcoal, stichery; in 3-dimensional, children use wood, metal, clay and textiles; in appreciate activities, children are taught to seek a growing sensitivity to the world, enjoy a variety of art forms, develop understanding of line, color and mood, and learn to appreciate other cultures.

Individual teachers decide on their own programs using the basic philosophy outlined for them by the art specialists and in a 30-page art manual, which includes suggested projects. The resource instructors visit each classroom periodically to assist teachers.

The art program is being revised constantly as the teachers and resource personnel read about and study the role of art in the development of children. "But," say the specialists, "we've taught under other philosophies and this is the best so far. It primarily emphasizes aesthetic development—the sensitivity to visual aspects of life and to order and harmony—the inventive mind—getting the children to react inventively to a variety of situations."

"Both of these are necessary for our art program to be carried out to a satisfactory end," they conclude.

Next: Art in the junior high schools.

The Large Blotches of Bright color give this water color by a girl in the intermediate section of the school system a sense of movement to her conception of Christmas shoppers. The picture was painted after the teacher directed the class to do a water color of something the children experienced. The project was designed to help students understand themselves in relation to the world around them.

Science Club Plans Trip to Chicago Museums

Almost 40 members of the Appleton High school Science club are visiting Chicago today. Each student will visit two of the following places: Adler planetarium, Chicago Natural History museum, Museum of Science and Industry, or the Shedd aquarium.

Students left by chartered bus early today and will return late this evening. They are accompanied by Harvey Reinholz, Thomas Farrell, and Eugene Vanden Heuvel, biology teachers and club advisers.

Among those planning to make the trip are Steve Boch, Katherine Boelter, Richard Boettcher, Robert Brock, Walter Brummund, Judy Butler, Timothy Davis, Suzanne Doherty, Alan Gallaher, Georgina Cranberg, Polly Grobe, Karen Herman, Karen Laudert, Ron Meyer, Lynn Pierson, John Page, Karen Parfitt, Gwen Parlin, Dick Reigel, Jane Tibbetts, Thomas Van Heuklon, Sue Getschow, Joseph Getschow, Howard Roelofs, Russell Larson, Daniel Derfus, Robert Voecks, Mary Schwalenberg, Lynn Weinkauff, Paul Smoody, Steve Hegard, Pamela Wulk and Karen Fox.

Youth Fined for Hitting Bartender

David Jost, 21, of 1335 Katherine street, was jailed Friday when he could not pay a $35 fine in municipal court for disorderly conduct.

He was charged by Mrs. Doris Colavecchi, who was tending bar at Shine's Super Bar, 343 W. College avenue, Monday when Jost asked to be served. Mrs. Colavecchi refused, and Jost hit her with an ash tray and used abusive language, she complained.

Plastic Tape Used for Gifts Make Handsome Decorations

BY CAPPY DICK

It's a lot of fun for a boy or girl to have a personal rubber stamp with which to imprint writing paper. Today's fun-project directions tell how to make such a stamp in a very short time.

All you need is a big cork, a flat button with an interesting design on it and a couple of straight pins. You will also need a regular rubber stamp ink pad.

Figure 1 shows the type of button which will be suitable. The important thing is for the design to be flat so it will all be imprinted when you press it upon a piece of paper as the boy is doing in the illustration.

There also must be at least two holes in the button. These will permit you to attach the button to the wide end of the cork with a couple of pins as shown in Figure 2. Press the pins down as far as possible so their heads will not be imprinted as part of the design. The stamper is now ready for use. Simply press it on a rubber stamp ink pad, using the narrow end of the cork as a handle. Then press the inked stamp on a sheet of writing paper or the flap of an envelope (Figure 3). When you lift the stamper you will see that the design has been printed neatly.

The more unusual the design on the button, the more interesting your personal imprint will be, so spend plenty of time hunting for the most suitable button you can find. (Copyright, 1960)

Congress Turns From Outer Space To Their Own Kitchen Cabinets

Bill Would Require Labeling Products Which Contain Hazardous Substances

BY FRANCES McKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — A few congressmen have taken their eyes off outer space, civil rights and few other world-shaking problems to take a long look at the kitchen shelf, and judging from what they found there, it's about time.

This statement was made by Rep. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, after reading testimony presented during house interstate and foreign commerce committee hearings on a bill to require the labeling of all manufactured products containing hazardous substances.

"Since the last labeling act was passed by the congress in 1925, the number of known chemicals which could be harmful if consumed, has grown from 12,000 to 300,000," Byrnes continued. "Products containing these chemicals are found on the kitchen shelf in the cabinet in the bathroom and all too often in the stomachs of small children."

Preventable Tragedy

The congressman said that the testimony developed by the director of a poison control center in suburban Maryland operated by the U. S. Public Health service and the Maryland department of health showed that "accidental poisonings account for 43 per cent of all deaths among children between the ages of 2 and 3 years."

"The tragedy of this is that in most of these cases, the deaths could have been prevented," Byrnes declared.

Another Wisconsin congressman, Melvin R. Laird of Marshfield, was so "shocked" by figures disclosed recently during secret hearings of the house appropriations subcommittee on health education and welfare on accidental poisonings, that he introduced a bill himself on labeling products containing hazardous substances.

Congressmen are Fathers

"When the hearings are released to the public by our committee, parents from all over the country will insist that some type of labeling bill be passed," Laird predicted, more as the father of three children, he said, than as a congressman.

Congressman Byrnes, who is not only a father of five, but also chairman of the house Republican policy committee, said it's congress' job to do something about disclosing the contents of the death traps used every day in the average American home.

Several trade association representing manufacturers of household products have testified that required uniform labeling would not decrease their sales. In fact, it might make them less liable for suit in case of injury or death of those using the product. They stressed, however, that the law would have to be Federal, in order to include all products.

Innocent Danger

The necessity of this is highlighted by research done by the poison control center in Maryland, which lists innocent looking furniture polish, bleaches, detergents, pot cleaners, cosmetics, hair preparations and endless other household "necessities" as often containing harmful ingredients.

"A doctor from the poison control center testified that in the year 1956, there were over 200,000 poisonings in this country which resulted in 5,000 deaths," Byrnes said. "This fatality figure represents more deaths than those resulting from polio, scarlet fever, meningitis and diphtheria combined."

Furthermore, he pointed out, when a poisoned child is brought to a hospital, or to a doctor, hours may be lost before he is treated, as medical experts attempt to discover what poison he has swallowed so that the proper antidote can be administered.

Picture Labels Suggested

"And that is where the congress comes in," Byrnes said. "We should, and in all probability will, pass a law requiring the labelling of the contents of all unsafe-for-consumption products, or dangerous products, perhaps with first aid antidotes."

Measles, Mumps Epidemic Noted By State Board

Madison — (U) — Wisconsin has what the State Board of Health calls an epidemic in measles and mumps.

Figures for the period Jan. 1 to March 12, show 6,168 cases of measles and 11,303 cases of mumps.

This compares with 3,675 cases of measles and 5,107 cases of mumps in the same period of last year.

(Appleton's health department reported five cases of measles and 35 cases of mumps for February.)

The situation holds no cause for alarm. Dr. Milton Feig, head of the board's communicable disease division said. "We refer to this incidence as an epidemic because it is one of those cyclic periods in which prevalence is heavier than usual," Dr. Feig said.

Rural Denmark Youth's Parole to be Revoked For Improper Advance

Green Bay — Steps have been initiated to revoke the parole of Roger Rozek, 19, rural Denmark, who was jailed in Green Bay Thursday for making improper advances to a 15-year-old Kaukauna girl, Grady Davis, state probation and parole officer, reported.

Rozek was apprehended by county officers on the complaint of the girl after she fled from his car late Wednesday night in the Willow street area of Preble.

The request to the state welfare department to order revocation of Rozek's parole is based on this incident and two other factors, including transportation of beer in a car with a juvenile present.

outright poison would have the usual skull and cross bones sticker. A flame would warn the consumer that the product was inflammable. A picture of an exploding article would show the product was explosive and a corroded hand would be a graphic way of illustrating that flesh could be severely burned if it came in contact with the product.
